PRESIDENT WITHDRAWS TILSON'S NAME

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—President Coolidge today withdrew his nomination of William J. Tilson, brother of the Republican leader of the House, to be a Federal judge in Georgia. A Senate committee already had reported unfavorably, and Senate leaders had told the President that confirmation would be denied by the Senate.

Another Happy Day
The White Star Sold

ANOTHER HAPPY, carefree day in Wall Street, except for foolish bears, ignoring advice frequently printed in this column. This is a bull Summer, leading up to a rampageous bull Autumn.

HARD WORKING BROKERS sold about two and a half million shares yesterday. United States Steel went to 139¾, highest price for all time, including war time, when civilized nations were buying iron with which to kill each other.

IN HONOR of the day, a seat on the Stock Exchange sold at $156,000, also a high record. That's cheap for a broker's seat, in these "two million share" days, if you don't mind spending your life wondering what's going to happen next.

THE WHITE STAR LINE, an American concern, will sell to a British syndicate for "not less than seven million pounds." Thus American high finance confesses its inability to run ships in competition with the rest of the world. The British relish that confession.

IT IS FAIR to American owners to say two things:

First, that running steamships on the high seas can't be done well from behind a stock ticker.

Second, that laws passed here for the protection of sailors under the American flag make it difficult for American owners to compete, especially against ships manned by Asiatics.

ON LONG ISLAND four volunteer firemen confess that they set fire to barns and other buildings "just for the thrill." Two of the volunteers drove the fire apparatus, the others were just "fire heroes." They couldn't bear inactivity.

That's something like a kaiser, king or czar, with a well-trained army. It is hard for such gen-

SWEDEN'S NEXT RULER AND CONSORT SEE OLD N. E. TO WILD ACCLAIM

The witchery, but not the witch-folk, of old Salem enthralled Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus and Princess Louise of Sweden today as they made their first stops in a day's itinerary of North Shore visiting.

Thousands from North Shore and surrounding towns cheered the royal party as the Prince and Princess appeared.

For the second time in less than two years royalty is on a North Shore holiday, but where the visit of the Prince of Wales lasted for a number of days, the stay of the Swedish royal pair is limited to but two.

A bit rested after their day of fatigue in Worcester yesterday, and the automobil whirl from that city to Beverly, the royal couple left the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge at Pride's Crossing today and were driven to Salem.

Hawthorne's "House of the Seven Gables," hallowed landmark of old Salem, was one of the first places visited and the Prince and Princess were added to the list of distinguished company it has welcomed down the years.

Crowds thronged the highways and the streets of the town to watch the party roll in and the arrival was the occasion for an ovation, with many Swedish flags evident in the crowd.

The master tale of Hawthorne had been read by both Prince and Princess, and they gazed on the famed structure and inspected its interior seemingly with a semblance of awe. Their expressions of delight were as spontaneous as those of children on a first visit away from home and they absorbed every item of interest in the old manse.

VISITS GALLOWS HILL.

But the other sights and traditions of Roger Conant's historic Witch City were not neglected by the distinguished visitors and party.

Essex Institute and the Peabody Museum were visited, as well as other historic old buildings and mansions. The famed Salem doorways came in for close scrutiny, and the Crown Prince and Princess insisted on visiting Gallows Hill, where died the "witches."

The tour of historic points in Salem consumed most of the morning, but the party left the city in time to arrive at "Indian Hill," West Newbury, shortly after noon. Here they planned inspection of the seventeenth century home of Ben Mosely.

From West Newbury the Prince and Princess were whirled over the

BIG FORCE OF COPS IN RAID ON CLUB

Three sergeants and about twenty-five patrolmen from the Dudley street police station paid a social call on the Black and White, widely known night club, at No. 2150 when they departed carried with thm about four gallons of Scotch, gin, "alky splits," and just plain "hooch," as one officer put it.

A warrant will be asked against the club officials, charging that the club is a common nuisance, it was said at the Dudley street station after the raid.

When the police walked in, they charge, there were 52 persons in the place, and of this number only one could produce a membership card. The 52 were interviewed by the various officers, and their names taken.

Headed by Sergeants Winn, Mutz and Purcell the raiding party gathered in the vicinity of the club about 2 a. m. The front doorbell was rung and when the door was opened

GIRL'S LIFE CRUSHED OUT UNDER AUTO

Twelve-year-old Alice Reardon of Lowell street, Wakefield, was killed at Reads Corner, Wakefield, today, when a sedan, driven by William Bergeron of Lowell, skidded, turned over and crushed her and the bicycle she was riding.

Bergeron's machine went into the skid when he jammed on his brakes in an attempt to avoid hitting her. He was arrested, charged with operating an automobile in a manner dangerous to the lives and safety of the public.

LYNNFIELD MURDER VICTIM IN WEST

Sylvia Gaines, 22, of Lynnfield, who was choked and beaten to death in a dense wood near Seattle, N. W., while on a visit to her father. He is an invalid, having been shell shocked in the war. Miss Gaines had planned to return home a week ago, but extended her visit—only to meet her death.

GOES TO GREET GIRL BUT FINDS ONLY DEATH

Instead of her 22-year-old daughter, Sylvia Gaines, returning from a visit to Seattle, a taxicab bore to the door of Mrs. Sylvia Maynard, of Locust street, South Lynnfield, a grim messenger with the tidings of the girl's murder.

The joyful mother, rushing to the door to greet her daughter whom she thought had arrived home after a month's absence, was confronted instead by a newspaperman whose sad news prostrated her.

He bore the story of the finding of Sylvia's body in a grove on Green Lake, in the northern section of Seattle. She had been beaten and strangled.

FATHER AN INVALID.

The ground nearby gave silent testimony to the heroic battle waged before she was beaten into insensibility with a rock.

Between sobs the mother today told how Sylvia departed a month ago to visit her father and uncle in Seattle. Mrs. Maynard said she obtained a divorce eleven years ago and her former husband went to the Pacific Coast, where he made his home with a brother. During the

COP TESTIFIES RUM WAS FOUND IN HOME OF ACTING JURYMAN

The trial of Attorney Nathan Ullian in the so-called "take-the-rap" cases in Suffolk Superior Court was suddenly halted today when Judge Willfred Gray announced, following a hasty conference, that a matter had arisen which demanded immediate investigation.

The break came shortly after the trial had started, and resulted from a conference requested by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien with the court and defense counsel.

Following a brief conference at the bench, Judge Gray made his announcement and the jury being sent out of the room counsel retired to the lobby for discussion.

The halt of the trial occasioned a sensation, and rumors were rife in the courthouse as to the cause. No explanation was offered by court or counsel.

The delay occurred after testimony had been given to the effect that liquor was obtained during a police raid on the home of C. Brown, Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, druggist, while he was serving as a juror.

The witness, Sergt. William D.

BOSTON'S PILGRIMS VISIT FORD'S CITY

Detroit, June 18.—New England pilgrims to the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, including 500 men and women from Boston and other parts of New England, arrived here today on the S. S. South American and went ashore for a three-hour drive through parks and show places of the city.

All of the six New England States were represented by the throng of voyagers who streamed down the gangplank to see the wonders of the automobile city.

The pilgrimage is headed by Cardinal O'Connell, who beamed a happy smile on the 500 men and women as they boarded the vessel at Buffalo.

The Cardinal, evidently pleased by the devout throng which he is leading to the historic church function, stood on the deck with the Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine, I. P. P. of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury.

The pilgrims joined Cardinal O'Connell on the South American at Buffalo, coming in a body on a special train from Boston.

The pilgrim train was run in two sections, the second only five minutes behind the first, and pulling into Worcester, Springfield and Albany in time to see the first section

CROWLEY PROBES RAIDS BY FAKE LIQUOR COPS

Reports of three fake liquor raids in South Boston, in which two former members of the liquor squad are said to have participated, today caused Police Superintendent Crowley to order an investigation and to detail an officer to ferret out the facts.

In one of the raids, the proprietor was beaten up and his place wrecked by the fake dry officers, according to reports reaching police headquarters. All three of the places raided were near-beer saloons in the territory of the Athens street police station.

While the raiders found no liquor at any of the places visited, they are said to have threatened arrests.

Superintendent Crowley ordered Captain George W. Patterson, head of the liquor squad, to make a complete investigation, after several complaints were received at headquarters. One of the complaints was received by Captain Patterson.

Previous compaints have been received that former members of the liquor squad have staged fake raids. While Superintendent Crowley put little credence in the present reports so far as they concerned former liquor officers, he said that one investigation did lead to the dismissal of a member of the police department who had been a member of the liquor squad.

start ahead on the journey to Buffalo.

On the first section were many prelates and priests, including the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Richard J. Haberlin, D.D., chancellor of the archdiocese and secretary to Cardinal O'Connell; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Arthur T. Connolly, pastor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain; the Rt. Rev. Dr. Joseph F. McGlinchey, diocesan director of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith; the Rev. Frederick J. Allchin, of St. Paul's Church, Dorchester; the Rev. Augustine F. Hickey, I. P. P., of St. Paul's Church, Cambridge, and diocesan supervisor of parochial schools; the Rev. P. J. Durcan of Forest Hills, Humphrey O'Sullivan, Knight of St. Gregory of Lowell; the Rev. Dr. John J. McGarry of St. Patrick's Church, Lowell; the Rev. E. J. Campbell of the Pilot, and many other prominent Catholic men and women from various parts of the Boston archdiocese. Mrs. Martha Moore Avery came in this section.

REACH CHICAGO SUNDAY.

The section of train carried other priests and prominent pilgrims, including the Rev. John F. O'Brien, pastor of the church of St. John the Evangelist, Winthrop. Walter E. Guyette, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, of Lowell, also was on this section.

Everybody in the pilgrim party is in the bes tof spirits. Cardinal O'Connell was the picture of good health as he stood on the deck of the South American and greeted his pilgrims.

The call at Detroit was decided upon while the party was en route to Buffalo. After Detroit the party will proceed to Mackinac Island, where it is due to arrive tomorrow at 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time. The schedule will bring us into Chicago at 2 p. m. Sunday, when Mayor Dever and officials of the Chicago city government will greet His Eminence. Mayor Dever is a native of Woburn and a royal welcome is on the program for the spiritual head of the Boston archdiocese, when he reaches the middle western metropolis.

During the trip through the Great Lakes, masses will be said each morning and devotions will be held during other parts of the day. Confessions will be heard and holy communion distributed at the masses.

200,000 GIVE CARDINALS WELCOME TO CHICAGO

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—Nine quiet and unassuming men of princely rank, including the vicar of the Pope, John Cardinal Bonzano, have gathered here from the far flung reaches of the world-wide hierarchy of the Catholic Church to participate in the twenty-eighth Eucharistic Congress.

Chicago might well be called the "Rome of America" in view of the presence of the cardinals, welcomed by George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago and sponsor of the congress; representatives of the city, civic organizations and an enthusiastic throng of 200,000 persons. The civic reception to the party will be held tonight.

The greeting of the crowds as the party left its special train was mostly directed at Cardinal Bonzano, "representing," as Cardinal Mundelein phrased it in his address of welcome, "the Holy Father, who is so dear to me as father and friend."

BELLS TOLL GREETING.

The demonstration was one of the greatest in the city's history. It began with the blowing of whistles as the Cardinal special approached the city. Automobile horns, sirens and other noise-making devices added to the din, until the train was well within the city. Tolling bells on Catholic churches throughout the city also announced news of the party's arrival.

In automobiles, after a brief welcome at the station, thep rinces of the church were taken through streets lined with thousands to the Cathedral of the Holy Name. Police sought to restrain the throng, but many slipped through to kiss the extended hand of the Papal Legate. Often it was necessary to stop the procession because of the ever pressing crowds.

CHILDREN JOIN WELCOME.

Hundreds of children waved flags, thousands more shouted and cheered from towering office buildings, within a few hundred feet of the spot where the missionary explorer, Fr. Marquette, first brought Christianity to the Middle West section of the New World.

The legate, on arriving at the Cathedral of the Holy Name, moved into the centre aisle, escorted by four acolytes, who held a white silk canopy aloft.

Bishops and archbishops in the purple of their office, swaying decorations bearing the papal coat of arms, triple crown of gold and silver, overhead shimmering in dim candle lights gave a setting of simplicity in the quiet of prayer.

Cardinal Dougherty Leads 1,000 Pilgrims to Chicago

Philadelphia, June 18 (A.P.).—Headed by Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, a delegation of more than 1,000 clergy and laymen left here today to attend the International Eucharistic Congress in Chicago.

Among those accompanying the cardinal are Bishop Michael J. Crane, Monsignors Thomas F. McNally and Joseph A. McCullough, the Very Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of St. Charles' Seminary, and James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus.

German Cardinal Tells Why He Came "Incognito"

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber, of Munich, who tried to travel from Germany to Chicago incognito, today explained somewhat his modesty.

"I traveled to this country incognito," he said. "Because I was coming as a delegate to the Eucharistic Congress of Chicago, not of New York, nor of the Atlantic ocean. Until I arrived here, as a delegate, there seemed little that I could do or say which would be of interest.

"I am a professor. For four years, from 1903 to 1907, I was professor at the University of Strasbourg, and my first name is Michael. So it was entirely correct, it seems to me, to book passage under the name of Herr Professor Dr. B. Michaelis."

LAFAYETTE'S GREAT GRANDSON IS DEAD

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Count Paul de Lafayette, 64, younger brother of the Marquis de Lafayette of France and great grandson of General the Marquis de Lafayette of American Revolutionary fame, is dead at his home in Mount Vernon.

In 1903 Count Paul came here to live, entering the brokerage business, in which he engaged until the time of his death.

the police walked in. There was no disorder, those in the club appearing to take the raid as a matter of course.

Most of the liquor taken was found in the vicinity of the kitchen, the police allege. Four pints of liquor, however, in a grip were found on one of the men in the place.

Today's raid has been in contemplation for the past ten or fifteen days, the police say. Various officers have been reporting seeing men leaving the place in apparently intoxicated condition, and there have been frequent disorders there, the police allege.

road to Portsmouth, N. H., where they were to lunch at 1:30 in the home of Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

The remainder of the day's itinerary included tea at the Governor Wentworth House in Portsmouth at 4 p. m., a departure at 4:30 for Gloucester by way of Ipswich and Essex for a view of Cape Ann, dinner in Gloucester at 7 p. m. and a weary return to Pride's Crossing at 10 o'clock.

Retiring, the Crown Prince and Princess will sleep for their second night in a guest chamber only a short distance removed from the house in which the Prince of Wales slumbered after his dancing nights while enjoying the North Shore in the Summertime.

GROWING WEARY.

Just how long the Prince and Princess will be able to hold up under the strenuous round of visiting and touring that has been their lot since arriving in America, was a matter of worried conjecture to their friends in the party today.

Only a few days of American hospitality suffice to weary the European visitor of regal blood—the Prince of Wales excepted, of course—and their long, busy day in Worcester yesterday, following the feting they were given in Newport, showed the effects plainly.

Their busiest day was in Worcester, where they visited principally to take part in the mid-Summer Swedish festival and where the Prince had conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science by Clark University.

Twenty thousand wildly cheering Swedes paid homage to the Crown Prince and Princess of their fatherland as their motor calvacade wound through the streets ne route to the Worcester Fair Grounds, where Governor Fuller and other officials welcomed them formally.

The Crown Prince had just conferred the Knighthood of Vasa upon George N. Jeppson, a native son and host to the royal pair, just as the father of the Crown Prince had conferred the same honor upon Jeppson's father years ago.

While in Worcester the royal party also visited the Swedish Home for Old People and the shutins at Fairlawn Hospital.

Kimball Out for Council

Charles A. Kimball of Littleton, former State Senator and ex-postmaster, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the Governor's council in the sixth district which includes five Senatorial districts in Middlesex County. The district is represented by Charles S. Smith of Lincoln.

With the Prince

There were more amateur photographers snapping Crown Prince Adolphus and Princess Louise in Salem than there were newspaper photographers, although the newsmen numbered a couple of dozen.

At Hawthorne's "House of the Seven Gables," Princess Louise evidenced the feminine side of the royal family by devoting her attention to the ancient furniture inside, while the Prince leaned more to the quaintness of the architecture and the layout of the grounds outside.

* * *

Two Wisconsin school teachers—male—who are hiking through the Summer, were interested spectators during the inspection of Salem by the royal couple.

Crown Prince Adolphus loves his joke. While newspaper photographers were snapping him constantly on the grounds of Seven Gables he sent in for his own private pocket camera, made a few shots of the premises, then turned the eye toward the photographers and ran off a number of feet of film. "Now I have my revenge," he chortled, while the camera fiends grinned.

* * *

Princess Louise's simple costume of tan felt hat, tan cloth coat and tan shoes and stockings drew frequent comment from the women watchers in Salem. "Why, she looks like a regular American woman," one young thing remarked to her companion. "Not like a Princess at all."

* * *

Motorcycle Officers P. J. Kelleher and William E. Farrell of the Salem police, who met the royal party on the Beverly bridge and escorted them into the Witch City, were so dignified that one of the accompanying reporters was moved to warn Kelleher not to fall over backwards. All the reporter got in reply was a frown and a solemn wink.

So tall is the Prince that he was compelled to stoop olmost constantly while inspecting the low-ceilinged Seven Gables. He performed almost a jackknife bend while climbing a secret staircase in the old manse.

* * *

In registering at Seven Gables, Prince Gustave did not use the English spelling. Instead he wrote "Gustaf," in small, neat, vertical handwriting that tended to slope backward nevertheless. The Princess' chirography was a large, flowing Spencerian.

JUDGE HOLDS UP 'RAP' CASE

Walsh, head of the Division 9 liquor squad, also testified that his superior, Capt. Fitzgerald, told him to hold up a warrant against Brown until the druggist finished his jury service.

The defense opened with Sergeant Harry M. Dickinson of Division 9 on the stand. After the direct examination of Attorney William Flaherty, the witness was questioned by the court, who asked why he got out a warrant against Mrs. Benjamin Henkin of No. 41 Winslow street, Roxbury, after police had raided her place and found half a pint of liquor in her husband's possession.

The witness said:

"The reason I did that was because Mrs. Henkin approached me and told me she was the one who gave the liquor to her husband. The liquor was upstairs in her home and when the police were there she went down stairs to the store and gave her husband the bottle."

The witness said he had watched persons go in and out of the store and the traffic was mostly met by Mrs. Henkin.

Sergeant Walsh, the next witness, told of a raid on the premises of C. Brown, a government witness, and Humboldt avenue druggist. Walsh said he went there and found a gallon of alcohol, some moonshine, four or five bottles of wine, which may have been champagne, and some liquor marked "Bottled in Bond, which was found to be hootch.

The day after the raid, according to the witness, Brown went to Walsh's home with another man and said:

"'Do you want my license? Why make all this trouble?'

"I said: 'You and your wife are going to court.'

"Brown said: 'Won't you fix this?'

"I said: 'No, I can't. If you want to talk that way you better go and see my captain.' Then he told me he was sitting on a jury and would be there until the 28th of the month. This was in August, 1925. I went to the captain and told him and the captain told me to hold up the warrant until Brown finished his jury service."

war he was shell-shocked and has been an invalid since.

Mrs. Maynard said that although she was given custody of her daughter the girl was friendly with her father, and the mother offered no objections when she expressed a desire to visit him.

Sylvia was to have returned a week ago yesterday, the mother said, but when her uncle wished her to remain another week and Mrs. Maynard readily granted the permission. She believed her daughter would reach home yesterday and when a taxi rolled to the door thought it contained the girl.

Miss Gaines was widely known in Lynnfield where she was graduated from the high school in the class of '21. She was graduated from Smith College in '25. She was an accomplished musician, was treasurer of the Peabody Camp Fire Girls, and a member of the Lynnfield Congregational Church.

MARBLEHEAD CELEBRATES

A ball tonight in Abbot Hall will climax the second day of Marblehead's celebration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of the American navy.

The colorful carnival, launched by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur and given pomp and splendor by the presence of high naval officers and naval cadets, continued in full swing. Everywhere the gala spirit prevails.

The celebration was given a new impetus by the decision of Secretary Wilbur that Marblehead is the birthplace of the American navy. The decision ends a warm controversy between Marblehead, Salem and Kingston for honor.

The final decision of Secretary Wilbur is that the schooner Hannah, manned by Marblehead sailors, was the first vessel in the navy. A bronze tablet on which a replica of the schooner is engraved will be carried back to Washington by Secretary Wilbur and placed in the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Tomorrow the last day of the celebration will be crowded with glittering events. A parade of midshipmen and officers will be held in the afternoon. In the evening there will be balls for them at the Eastern, Corinthian and Boston Yacht Clubs and the Rock-Mere. A monster fireworks display will be held at 10 o'clock.

$40,000 LOSS IN FACTORY FIRE

Throwing an entire neighborhood into a panic and threatening to spread to a heavily wooded section in which a score of new houses are located, a fire early today destroyed the factory of the Massachusetts Potteries Comany at No. 24 Ralston road, Hyde Park.

The flames, fed by straw and other inflammable material in the long low wooden structure, flared high into the air and were visible for miles around.

Near the factory on several roads recently cut through the woods are many new houses and a few old ones. If the flames got out of control and spread to the woods these homes would have been doomed.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, although a spark from a passing engine may have fallen on the roof. The damage was estimated by Samuel Neustadt, the owner, as $40,000 although the police claimed it would not exceed $15,000.

Salesman in Bankruptcy

Owen F. Farley, formerly of Somerville, a salesman, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal Court, listing his liabilities at $40,920 and assets, consisting mostly of household effects, at $300. The largest creditor is Peter F. McKenna of Washington street, Woburn, who holds an unsecured promissory note for $20,000.

Buffalo Tabloid Merged

Buffalo, N. Y., June 18 (I.N.S.).—Announcement was made today by William J. Connors, Jr., its editor and publisher, that the Daily Star will be merged with the Morning Courier and Express, effective Monday, June 21. The Star was Buffalo's first tabloid.

Frock Coated Cops Guard Cardinals

Chicago, June 18.—Cops in silk hats and morning coats form the guard for the prelates at the Drake Hotel. The cops also have pistols, but they're camouflaged.

Bursting with pride is Sergeant Harry Donnelly of the Chicago force. A newspaper printed his picture with that of Cardinal O'Donnell, primate of Ireland.

5-MONTH BRIDE WINS DECREE

Recital of a long list of cruelties inflicted on her, she said, by her husband, Albert, in the five months of their married life, won a decree nisi today in Suffolk Probate Court for Mary Hurwitz of Middleton street, Dorchester.

He threatened to behead her, she declared, played dead to frighten her, tried to sit her on a heated stove, passed as a burglar, jabbed her continually with a knife point, locked her in a dark house after taking out all the electric light bulbs and told her she had no right to take a bath without his permission.

Judge McCoole granted her the right to resume her maiden name. They were married on September 6, 1925.

BRITISH NOTE STIRS RUSSIA

Moscow, June 18 (A.P.).—Workers' demonstrations in protest against the British strike funds note continued late into the night, causing a considerable stir throughout the city, strongly reminiscent of the reaction to the famous Curzon note. Similar demonstrations were held in a number of other cities.

There is general uneasiness here regarding developments of the controversy. The authorities as well as the people generally feel that the British Conservatives challenge the Soviet's right to allow money remittances to be sent to the British strikers simply as a pretext.

M. Zinovieff, chairman of the executive of the Third International, publishes a letter reading in part:

"All signs indicate that the gentlemen (Conservatives in England) are preparing a new forged documents campaign. The workers must prepare public opinion against the forgers. The Conservatives honor the agitators exceedingly by attributing the general strike to their agitation. The causes of the strike and the movement among the miners lie deeper."

FAKE CHARM COST $2,000; SEERESS TO PAY BACK

Brockton, June 18.—Frank Bernard of No. 24 Linden street, Whitman, placed $2000 in a charm to ward off a stomach ailment. When the ailment persisted he looked and found the money missing.

Mrs. Annie Marks, a Worcester gysy, who conducted a fortune telling parlor here was found guilty of the larceny in Superior Court and her attorney intimated that she would make restitution.

DANCER SHOT AS PLAY GOES ON

Regina Flory, French revue actress, found on floor of Drury Lane Theatre office in London, with revolver near her hand. Not one in the audience of "Rose-Marie" heard the shot. She died by her own hand, police say.

THIRD OF 3 SISTERS TO MARRY IN PARIS

Visited Boston Last Winter; Ambassador Herrick Among the Official Witnesses

Miss Julia Thayer, attractive and socially prominent daughter of Mrs. Van Rensselaer Thayer of Boston, was married today in Paris to Viscount Roederer, according to dispatches.

The wedding was marked by an elaborate ceremony at the church of St. Honore Deylay. Ambassador Herrick was one of the official witnesses.

The bride and her mother, who have made their home in Paris in recent years, visited Boston during the Winter and early Spring. They were the guests of Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, cousin of Mrs. Thayer. Miss Thayer was a prominent figure at the Assembly Ball during her stay here.

The bride is an attractive blonde and the youngest of three sisters.

One of the sisters, formerly Mary A. V. Thayer, is now Countess de Comminges of Paris. She married Count Bertrand de Comminges abroad in 1914. The other sister, the former Alice Thayer, is the wife of Louis de Montgomery, also of Paris.

LINER LIMPS IN WITH DAMAGED PROPELLER

With a diver, called by radio, waiting at the dock to repair a damaged propeller, the steamer Westphalia hobbled into Commonwealth Pier today to take on passengers for Hamburg and Queenstown. Hampered by heavy fog and the crippled propeller the big liner docked an hour behind schedule and the diver worked frantically to get the boat on its way again as near schedule as possible.

Five professors were among the 150 passengers boarding the ship at this port, bound for Hamburg: Professor Eugene Greunberg of Smith College, Professor and Mrs. J. G. Beebe Centre of Harvard, Professor and Mrs. R. M. Mitchell of Brown and Professor and Mrs. W. K. Stewart of Dartmouth, Professor R. L. M. Underhill of Harvard with his secretary, Miss Natalie Whipplinger. Sisters Mary O'Donnell and Bridget M. Lewis, attached to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, were bound for Queenstown.

CAUGHT IN DEBRIS AS 17-FOOT WALL FALLS

Partially buried in a heap of debris when a brick wall on which he was working collapsed today in Victory road, Dorchester, Alfred E. Randall, twenty-six, of No. 78 Grove street, Chelsea, suffered a lacerated skull, contusions and abrasions. He was extricated by workmen and taken to the City Hospital.

Randall was working on top of the wall, which was being torn down, when it suddenly gave way.

DRAW LINE AT TOO MUCH "INDEPENDENCE"

Springfield, June 18.—There will be no float depicting Joyce Hawley's wine bath in the Independence Day parade if Springfield pastors can eliminate it. The ministers have lodged a vigorous protest against a float of this description with the committee in charge of the parade.

Protests Cut in Trains

Senator William I. Hennessey of Dorchester today filed a protest with the Public Utilities Commission against the curtailment of train service at the Mt. Bowdoin and Dudley Street stations of the New Haven road.

EXTRAORDINARY ROMANCE OF MLLE. CECILE SOREL!—The famous French actress, now sixty years old, kidnaps her sweetheart, young Count de Segur, from the ancestral castle, where disapproving relatives held him a prisoner, and marries him. A most romantic news story, all the way from France. In the Boston Sunday Advertiser. With pictures.

JOYCE HAWLEY LEFT OUT OF THIS BATHTUB SCENE

Washington, June 18 (I.N.S.).—Bathtubs—minus Vanities beauties—will be investigated soon by the government.

Placed on the front pages as the result of the famous Carroll Broadway bathing party, the once obscure domestic necessity will now be given a thorough study from the economic standpoint. Department of Commerce officials, who will conduct the survey, denied today that Joyce Hawley will be engaged to assist the experts.

In co-operation with the sanitary enamelware industry, an attempt will be made to reduce the number of sizes and types of bathtubs. Hundreds of types are on the market, from the old-fashioned wooden tub to the fancy crystal and glass model costing a small fortune. The number of models could be reduced materially, thus evaing the producer and consumer thousands of dollars, officials said.

THIS MOVIE BEAUTY A WASTED SHADOW, HER NERVES SHATTERED!—How pretty Katherine Grant, remembered as the prize winner "Miss Los Angeles," staked her health and career against a diet of spinach, tomatoes and orange juice to regain her figure, and—lost! Possibly a lesson to others who are "reducing." In the Boston Sunday Advertiser, Pictures of Katherine.

HAMPTON COAST GUARD IN FIRE CONTROVERSY

Hampton Beach, N. H., June 18.—A bitter controversy has arisen between the fire department and members of the United States Coast Guard here concerning the right of the latter to fight and report fires.

For nearly half a century the coast guard in conjunction with its official duties has fought all fires in the vicinity, later reporting them to the selectmen. Two days ago, Capt. Wallace Brown of the coast guard received a communication from Chief Engineer Whiting of the fire department requesting coast guard members not to battle fires unless called. This angered Capt. Brown, and he today said his men would respond whether called or not.

Meantime, Chief Whiting has installed modern fire fighting apparatus so as to bring his department to a higher point of efficiency.

Horse Gone, Ends Life

Kansas City, June 18 (A.P.).—Misaji Kawahara, a Japanese truck farmer living near here, hanged himself when his horse, to which he was much attached, died.

2 GIRLS DYING, 30 BURNED

Swathed in bandages and in a dying condition, two little girls are in Boston hospitals today as a result of June 17 celebrations, while thirty other young people were treated at th Haymarket Relief Hospital for fireworks injuries.

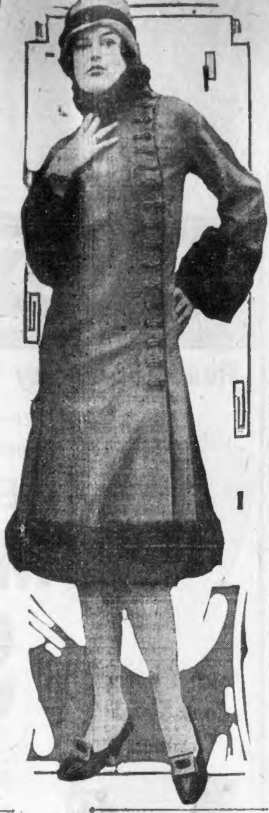
The two dying children are Anna Nice of No. 19 Sprague street, Charlestown, five years old, and Dorothy Moore, seven, of No. 13 Fernald terrace, Dorchester.

Both were setting off fireworws in the doorways of their homes when their clothing became ignited and they were furned fatally before their parents could extinguish the flames.

3 THUGS DOOMED TO DIE FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

New York, June 18 (I.N.S.).—John Maxwell, 21, and William and Kasmir Barzeyouk, 28 and 22, respectively, were sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison. They were convicted of the murder of Mrs. Mary Betsch, 50, who was killed in the holdup of an A. & P. store.

ONE SMART TYPE OF BOSTON GIRL



Miss Hilda Candy typifies the smartly garbed girl of Boston Town. She wears a street ensemble coat dress of light Summer broadcloth in ashes of roses, with trimmings of brown Coney fur in wide bands; bone buttons. Her crochet straw hat matches the dress, and is trimmed with black satin. Black satin shoes and tan hose complete the costume.

Miss Hilda Candy of Boston advances to the notice of the fashion and art authorities who will select The Boston Girl of 1926, in a striking street ensemble coat of light Summer broadcloth in ashes of roses and broad brown coney fur bands.

She completes her raiment with a matching crochet straw hat wound with black satin. Her pumps are black satin also.

Miss Candy is a type of the smartly dressed girl distinctive in poise and personality. She is one of a large number of girls whose photograph goes before the judges who will first consider each photograph and then request the prospective Boston Girls of 1926 to appear before them for a final deciding personal interview.

OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL.

This interesting opportunity of selection as The Boston Girl of 1926 is as open to you as it is to Miss Candy and the other girls whose photographs have been submitted to The Boston Girl of 1926 Editor.

All you must do is to submit a photograph of yourself in your most becoming costume whether street, evening, or sports. The only apparel eliminated is the bathing costume.

If it is more convenient come in and have a photograph taken. There is no charge.

Like Miss Candy, you will then be eligible for consideration and distinctive honors and substantial awards.

The first award is the Silver Laurel Wreath and $500 in gold; second an evening gown valued at $250 or $250 in gold; third an ensemble valued at $100 or $100 in gold. Second and third awards also include a brooch replica in miniature of the Silver Laurel.

The Boston Evening American is conducting the quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 and will make the awards.

EMINENT JUDGES.

The actual selection of The Boston Girl of 1926 is entirely in the hands of the art and fashion authorities composing the board of judges. They are Miss Lucy Park, associate editor of Harper's Bazaar; Mr. Ledyard W. Sargent, director of the Sargent School of Physical Education, Cambridge; Mr. Cyrus Dallin, distinguished sculpter, and Mr. Royal Bailey Farnum, director art education, Massachusetts.

Have your photograph before them when they sit to select The Boston Girl of 1926 and make the awards. Array yourself in your prettiest dress and come in and have a photograph made if you have none on hand.

You are not entering a beauty contest; nor will you compete against members of the theatrical profession for they are barred.

The quest is for the three girls most clever in suiting prevailing styles in apparel to their personality and poise.

BLAMES DEATH ON PHONE SERVICE; ASKS $100,000

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.)—Alleging that poor telephone service was responsible for the death of a baby and the poor health of its mother, damages of $100,000 were asked from the Illinois Bell Telephone Company in the formal notice of a suit on file today. Attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Grant said the action was based upon the inability of the husband to summon medical aid by telephone at the birth of the child.

tlemen to remain idle—as the world learned in 1914.

THE CONGRESSIONAL Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic is told that big bootleggers are financed by respectable banks.

Representative Upshaw, much dryer than a camel at the end of a trip across Sahara, says he will see about forfeiting the charter of any national bank "knowingly financing a bootleg corporation."

That would not be in accordance with custom. Money that runs into millions is made respectable by its very size, and bootlegging runs into MANY millions.

VISITING CARDINALS from across the ocean were welcomed in Chicago by a crowd of 100,000, including the Mayor, Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, one thousand Knights of Columbus, in "ceremonial costume with sword and baldric," and one thousand firemen wearing white gloves. Excitement and enthusiasm were so great, the desire to approach the Cardinals as they drove along in their automobiles, and if possible to kiss the rings on their hands, was so intense that police lines were kept back.

NEW YORK, frequently and cruelly criticized as a "fast city," adopts strict moral laws. Mayor Walker announces a curfew law that would compel all cabarets and night clubs to close up at 3 o'clock in the morning. That seems more reasonable than the old "cover fire" law that sent the citizens indoors at sunset.

ONE FACT tells more than fat volumes of history sometimes. At Ridgewood, N. J., two thousand seven hundred citizens took the trouble to vote on an ordinance to free dogs from vaccination to prevent rabies. Of the 2,700, only 2,556 took the trouble to express their preference as to Congressmen.

Historians will be interested in a community attaching more importance to a local dog law than to its national representation at Washington.

TAKE CARE of your business and your business will take care of you. Not long ago Uncle Sam, in a virtuous anti-trust fit, chopped the Standard Oil up into little pieces. It was said the "giant octopus" had grown to be as big as a thousand million dollars, ONE BILLION. That would never do, so the big octopus was cut into several little octopuses, called Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of New Jersey, of Indiana, of New York.

"That will keep you quiet," said Uncle Sam. It kept them quiet, but it didn't make them poor.

IN THE SECOND QUARTER of this year the Standard Oil octopuses paid in dividends more than fifty million dollars. That's at the rate of 5 per cent. on FOUR BILLIONS.

But the people no longer get excited about it. The question isn't "How big is your business," but "How do you run it?" Henry Ford says Standard Oil is the best managed business in the United States.

A RUMOR from Detroit says that Ford plans a new sales method, some novel scheme for helping those that want Ford cars to buy them more easily on credit, to meet competition of the General Motors.

EUROPE IS AGITATED because our foreign representative at Geneva is supposed to have congratulated Brazil's representatives on quitting the League of Natitons. Washington denies it, and also denies that this government advised Brazil to get out. One thing is certain, the average American would congratulate Brazil as sincerely as he would congratulate a mouse that got out of a trap.

LAY 15 DEATHS TO DEAD MAN

Pittsburgh, June 18.—Pennsylvania Railroad officials have completed their investigation of the disaster at Gray Station, Pa., which took a toll of fifteen lives and resulted in injury to fifty passengers, twelve of whom were seriously hurt.

The Washington Express and the Cincinnati Limited, which rammed the former while traveling at full speed, were interstate trains.

Pennsylvania Railroad investigators stated unofficially, blame for the fatal crash, one of the worst in the Pennsylvania Railroad history, rests on W. S. Gordon, engineer of the first locomotive of the Cincinnati limited, who was killed. They said Gordon, who in all his twenty years of railroad experience never had been in an accident before, ran his train past four easily distinguishable warning signals.

As all the members of the crew of the first locomotive of the Limited were killed, it never will be known why Gordon did not heed the automatic block signal, the red fusees, the explosion caps and red hand-lantern signals.

Worcester Educator Killed on Way to See Wife

Worcester, June 18 (A.P.).—A few hours before his wife here received his letters telling her he was on his way home, Dr. Thomas L. Porter, head of the physics department at Washington and Jefferson University, was killed near Blairsville, Pa., in the railroad wreck.

Dr. Porter, after graduating from Northwestern at Chicago, came to Clark University to study for his doctor's degree.

Washington, June 11 (A.P.).—The Maine Central Railroad has been authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to operate a line from Bath to Woolwich over the Kennebec River in Sagadahoc County, Maine.

LOVE MAY COST DEPORTATION

Lowell, June 18.—Three years ago next September, George Penilebury kissed his wife and three children goodbye and sailed from Glasgow, Scotland, for America. He planned to come to Lowell, where he had relatives and friends, work hard and save money, and then send for his family.

He got a job at the car shops, earned good money and sent some of it back to Scotland.

A little over a year ago he ran across Elizabeth Stormant, who used to live on the same street in Glasgow.

Money orders were sent to Scotland with less regularity. The sums were smaller, too. Eventually they stopped altogether. In vain the wife in Scotland pleaded for money. Finally she lost track of him and appealed to the authorities in Glasgow.

Letters were sent to Boston. The authorities there communicated with the local police and Officers Cooney, Moore and Leahy of the vice squad were assigned to the case.

They learned Penilebury was living in Dracut and they went there last night, accompanied by Police Chief Albert Murphy of that town. They located him at Miss Stormont's house in Camden street, where he lived.

The officers also found another occupant in the house—a baby, which, they allege, was born to the couple three months ago. Penilbury and the woman admitted parentage, the police say.

Both were arrested on statutory charges, bailed out and today were arraigned in District Court.

ANGORA CATS ARE PASSING BREED MAY DIE OUT

Angora, Turkey, June 18 (A.P.).—Angora cats are in danger of becoming extinct. Years of war, famine and neglect in Turkey have made grave ravages on the breed of long-haired, bushy-tailed, pink-eyed tabbies, which, with the Angora goat, made this section of Turkey famous.

The only varieties the traveler to the Turkish capital sees nowadays are scrawny, half-starved, ill-colored cats, whose interbreeding with the common backyard city cat have caused them to lose much of their former "aristocratic" characteristics.

During the worst period of the war, when Turkey, like Germany and Austria, were driven to all extremities for food, it is said, many Turks in the interior ate cats and dogs.

WARM GREETING FOR PERSHING

Cherbourg, France, June 18 (A.P.).—An unusually cordial reception today greeted General John J. Pershing on landing from the Leviathan here.

General Pershing affirmed the strength of the comradeship among the allied veterans in his reply to the welcome accorded him. Veteran French soldiers and Admiral De Marguerie, commanding the port, received General Pershing officially, while the little daughter of one of the leading war heroes of Cherbourg presented him a bouquet in a trench helmet decorated with French and American colors.

The entire city was decorated with American flags and everywhere largec rowds turned out to see the general.

SHIP CRASHES BIG ICEBERG

St. John's, N. F., June 18 (A.P.).—Word was lacking today as to the fate of the British steamer Leicester, which had reported she was struggling for this port with her forward deck almost awash after striking an iceberg.

Several steamers are on the way to the position she last gave, about fifteen miles east of the Funk Islands.

The Leicester was outward bound from Montreal with grain for the United Kingdom and struck the ice soon after passing through the Straits of Belle Isle.

Philadelphia, June 18 (A.P.).—Leaders in the advertising profession from all parts of the world gathered here today for the annual meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world which will continue until next Thursday. More than 10,000 members of the profession, representing advertising clubs and associations in England, France, Holland, Australia, Canada and the United States are expected to attend the convention.

AGUINALDO OBJECTS TO LOSING MOROS

Manila, June 18 (A.P.).—Emilio Aguinaldo has cabled to President Coolidge a protest against the Bacon bill recently introduced in Congress, which would create a separate territorial government for the Moro provinces of the Philippine Islands.

It was indicated at the White House Tuesday that although the President had taken no definite position respecting the Bacon bill, he felt that friction between Christian Filipinos and the Moslem Moros might be eliminated by this means.

BIG GAINS IN ADS SHOW PROSPERITY

Toilet Articles and Medicinal Preparations Lead All in Amount of Space

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 18.—American newspapers carried 412,944,000 lines of advertising for the first four months of 1926, a gain of nearly 3 per cent. over the same period of 1925, the Department of Commerce announced today.

In the same period magazine advertising amounted to 8,915,000 lines, 9 per cent. ahead of last year. National advertising in newspapers made up 117,257,000 lines of the total.

These figures, compiled by the Bureau of the Census, were said by officials to be another indicator of the better business conditions in the United States this year.

MILLIONS AND MILLIONS.

The income to periodicals represented by the tremendous volume of advertising run into many millions of dollars monthly. According to the census report, producers of toilet articles and medicinal preparations were the heaviest advertisers in the January-April period, having accounted for 27,551,000 lines of the total national advertising appearing in newspapers.

Automobile advertising came a close second with 25,410,000 lines. Other principal national advertisers bought the following space:

Food, groceries and beverages, 15,406,000 lines; cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, 8,558,000 lines; railroads and steamships, 5,980,000 lines; radio and electrical, 4,740,000 lines; automobile accessories, 3,387,000 lines; financial institutions, 4,055,000 lines and household furniture, 2,343,000 lines.

LOCAL ADVERTISING.

Clothing and shoes were comparatively low in the list, but officials explained that the bulk of this advertising is probably done locally and did not come within the national classification.

Every type of national advertising increased in April over the preceding month, headed by household furniture with a jump of 85 per cent. Magazine advertising was 10 per cent. heavier in April than March, while newspaper advertising gained one per cent.

BATHING SUIT CAN'T BE SEEN; IT'S ZERO

Mt. Holyoke Students Accused of Having Emulated September Morn

Mother, may I go out to swim,
Yes, my dearest daughter;
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,
But don't go near the water.
—Nursery Rhyme.

Hadley, June 18. — Everything would have been just lovely if the girls from Mt. Holyoke College had followed mama's advice and kept away from the water. As it is the whole police force of this town is searching for several of them for bathing in the town reservoir.

If all the tales are correct the young damsels did hang their clothes on a limb, perhaps an apple, or a willow, or even an oak, but 'twas a limb anyway. And then in the birthday suit with which Mother Nature endowed them at birth these daring students plunged into the drink and disported to their heart's content.

The hour was just at twilight, according to the reports, but just who were the witnesses has not yet become quite clear.

According to rumor it has been an evening habit with the girls just after vespers.

Six Amherst College students were in court because they bathed in the town water supply, but the policemen are rather bashful about approaching the pond at dusk.

There's just one solution to the problem, the policemen agree, and that is the appointment of a policewoman who can venture within speaking distance of the pond.

Small Hen Lays 161 Pounds of Big Eggs

Lincoln, Neb., June 18 (A.P.).—A white Leghorn hen, nine years old, which has laid 1,186 eggs, is out for a record, poultry department officials at the Nebraska Agricultural College declare. The present record is 1,385 eggs.

The hen has just made a record of 143 eggs during her seventh laying year. The average life of a hen is five years. Her peak production was 206 eggs in a year.

The hen weighs only 3¾ pounds. Her eggs weigh 60 grams apiece, half again the size of most eggs.

The total weight of the seven years of eggs is approximately 161 pounds.

NEW CURFEW LAW STUNS BROADWAY

Mayor Walker Seeks Penalty of Fine and Jail Term to Regulate Cabarets

New York, June 18 (Universal).—Broadway was stunned again today when Mayor Walker put teeth into his curfew law.

The teeth consist of penalties of a year in jail and a fine of $500 for all cabaret and night club proprietors who do not close their places by 3 o'clock in the morning.

The present curfew order calls for 2 o'clock closing, but the mayor made an hour's concession as a leeway.

Cabaret owners asked the mayor to change the order to 3 and in addition give their patrons time to finish their meals after that hour.

But the new law assumes that patrons will have completed their dinners by 3 in the morning and also have on their coats and hats ready to leave.

The new law will go into effect on October 1, if passed.

Richard Reese Whittemore, who is under sentence to hang in Baltimore, is probably responsible for the new law.

MALDEN GIRL WINS 'WIVES' AWARD

Miss Goldstein, Out of Work, Is Delighted With Her Good Fortune

The fifty-dollar prize offered by the Boston American for the best essay written on "Did Charlotte Deserve Real Happiness?" and based upon the serial story, "Wives Adrift," has been won by Miss Lillian Goldstein of No. 26 Newton street, Malden. Out of 2,320 contributions hers was selected because of its clear, concise style, intelligent understanding of the story and originality.

LOOKING FOR WORK.

"I have been looking for work for two weeks," she said, "and every night I come home unsuccessful. I thought that after such a stretch of bad luck, nothing real lucky could happen to me. Oh, I am so happy!"

Miss Goldstein wrote her prize essay while taking care of her seven months' old nephew. "I guess he must have helped me," she said.

SHE IS STENOGRAPHER.

She is a trained stenographer, out of work since the House adjourned.

Fortunate

SHE WINS $50

Miss Lillian Goldstein, of No. 26 Newton street, Malden, gets award for best essay on "Wives Adrift."

Her essay follows:

"Did Charlotte deserve real happiness?"

Charlotte deserves every bit of real happiness.

In the short course of her married life she did not have and enjoy the companionship, love and attention of her husband which to a young woman truly in love with her husband means more to her than clothes, money and a beautiful home.

Her first introduction into Boston society was the friendship of a young married woman who taught her to smoke, drink and accept the attentions of other men. She did not have the friendship of a fine woman who would have interested her to spend her leisure time and money working for the public welfare.

She was thus left to her own devices and fell into the hands of a scoundrel like Lawrence Hill. She went through a lot of suffering and humiliation at his hands in order to shield Manning and his daughter from scandal.

PROVED BY LOYALTY.

Charlottee proved her friendship by her loyalty to Phyllis. She took all the blame when Dick Fenway walked into the room in the hotel at Atlantic City. He heaped words of scorn on her, but Charlotte made no attempt to defend herself, for she did not want to betray Phyllis to her husband.

Phyllis proved to be very mean and cowardly when she let Charlotte take all the blame. Also her husband had no right to tell Dave. He is like some catty women who just "love to squeal." Phyllis and her husband did not stand the test of friendship, namely, "loyalty."

Charlotte's parents failed her in her hour of need. Like a little child who is hurt she ran home to be comforted, but she was turned away by her father without giving her the chance to explain things.

Her husband who took her for "better or worse" did not believe in her innocence and separated from her.

The only true real friends that Charlotte had in her dark days were Gypsy Adair and Gregory Thomas.

Gypsy proved that "you don't have to be in fine society in order to be a lady."

As for Gregory Thomas he showed himself to be a very fine man and a true friend. I sometimes think Charlotte would have been very happy had she married Gregory Thomas. He had faith in her innocence whereas her husband did not.

Charlotte has gone back to her husband because she loves him. Love forgives and forgets. I hope in the years to come that Dave will try his best to make Charlotte happy for, through no fault of hers, Charlotte suffered a great deal, and I hope that in the future Charlotte shall have heaps of happiness so that all her troubles will seem to her like a bad dream.

$10,000 FOR MOTHER OF FIRST SAILOR KILLED

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—Representative Bloom, Democrat, New York, is sponsoring a bill to grant $10,000 to Mrs. Annie M. Eopolucci of Washington, mother of the first American sailor killed in the World War. He had served ten years in the navy and was killed when the steamship Aztec was torpedoed off the coast of France April 1, 1917. The war risk insurance act was not made effective until April 6 and the appropriation sought represents the sum the sailor's widowed mother would have received had he died a few days later.

SHE'S A WONDERFUL GIRL; CAN SPELL 'CERISE'

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—The rosiest dream, thus far, of Pauline Bell has come true. She knew how to spell "cerise."

Pauline is thirteen years old, the star pupil of a one-room school at Clarkson, Ky. She was Kentucky's hope in the second national spelling bee, conducted by twenty-two newspapers, in different parts of the country, the finals in which were held here. Today she is richer by $1,000 and has two gold medals.

By winning she retained the championship for Kentucky. Frank Neuhauser, fourteen, protege of the same newspaper—the Louisville Courier-Journal—won the title last year. She also led a field of girls to a position of dominance in the spelling world, only one boy clinging to a place among the six prize winners.

BRAINTREE MAN FOUND DEAD FROM GAS FUMES

Sent to the home of Mrs. Alexander Horne, No. 57 Dewey road, Braintree, by passersby who smelled gas near the house, Patrolman Christopher Garland forced his way in and found the body of Mrs. Horne's brother, Harry Sawler, 23, partly on the couch and partly on the floor in a gas-filled room. Mrs. Horne is in Nova Scotia, from where her brother recently came. Medical Examiner John C. Frasier of East Weymouth gave his verdict as accidental gas poisoning.

DEDHAM FIRE IMPERILS FIVE

A fireburg is responsible for fire that destroyed a two-story dwelling on Riverside Drive, Dedham, today, endangering the lives of Andrew Hanson, his wife, and three children. State police are investigating.

Hanson and his family fled after twice being awakened by smoke from a mysterious blaze. Fire was discovered on the piazza several hours after the occupants had retired. Shortly after it was extinguished the fire rekindled and had made such headway when Hanson was awakened by smoke the second time that firemen were unable to save the house.

The dwelling of John Peterson close by and a lunch room run by Mrs. Hanson, close to the Spring street bridge, were also damaged.

PICKFORD KIDNAPERS' CONVICTION UPHELD

Los Angeles, June 8 (A.P.).—The conviction of Charles Z. Stevens and Claud A. Holcomb on a charge of conspiring to kidnap Mary Pickford, the film actress, is upheld in an opinion handed down by the District Court of Appeals here.

Stevens and Holcomb were convicted last year. Evidence was introduced to show they and another man, Adrian J. Wood, who was acquitted, planned to kidnap the actress and hold her for $1,000,000 ransom.

COPS USE CLUBS IN FIRE, 1 DEAD

New York, June 18 (A.P.)—Fire boats and policemen's night sticks were called into play today to fight the flames and save tenants in a South street water front rooming house. John Cavanaugh, 45, a railroad laborer, was burned to death.

About fifty tenants were sleeping on the three upper floors of the house. Police reported they had to use their clubs to force some of the sleepy tenants to leave. Two fireboats came to the aid of the land apparatus.

Dennis Guia, proprietor of a restaurant on the lower floor, was charged with suspicion of arson and installing unauthorized gas implements after an extra gas meter had been found in his place. Police also reported finding a still in the house, but did not think it responsible for the fire.

Five New Marshals

Rome, June 18 (I.N.S.).—Five Italian generals were made marshals of the army today at the celebration marking the eighth anniversary of the battle of the Piave. The generals are Duke D'Aosta, Badoglio, Giardino, Perori and Caviglia.

HEARST LAUDED AS PIONEER

Los Angeles, June 18 (Universal)—Passage of the Dowell Federal aid highway bill last week is another step in the realization of the national highway system of America, first sponsored by William Randolph Hearst in 1906, according to H. W. Middagh, chairman of the Good Roads Bureau, California Division, Travelers' Protective Association of America.

Mr. Middagh writes:

"In connection with the passage of the Dowell Federal aid highway bill last week, it might be of interest to note that the Good Roads Bureau of this division has been, as a sponsor, in direct correspondence and telegraphic communication with Washington, D. C., all during the campaign for this bill.

"Also, our past State president, Eugene E. Pfaeffle, has been in that city for the past weeks in the interest of this important measure, attending sessions of both the House and Senate and also personally meeting President Coolidge.

"It must be of great satisfaction to William Randolph Hearst to know that this bill is another realization of the famous national highway system of America, as he alone pictured it back in 1906."

PEACE ARMIES NEAR LONDON

London, June 18 (A.P.).—Eight great columns of women who have been walking for five weeks are nearing London. They comprise the peace pilgrims who from all parts of Great Britain have been stopping in villages and towns on the way to the capital delivering peace speeches.

The eight columns will merge into four Saturday morning, and in that formation enter London. At Hyde Park, from 22 platforms, speakers will denounce war and plead for universal conciliation and arbitration.

One section of the women's army moved through Bedfordshire in a pouring rain. It stopped at the Bedford jail, where tea was served the pilgrims as they discussed Bunyan's "The Pilgrims' Progress."

The armies have grown so rapidly as the pilgrimage neared London that all accommodations arranged for the peace advocates have been allotted and appeals have been broadcast for beds to be used by the surplus women.

Fancy symbolic banners are carried by the various armies. One called "The Unknown Warrior" represents a little boy wearing a paper hat and holding a wooden sword. His toy soldier is on the floor beside him. Another banner, inscribed "Cannon Fodder," shows a picture of an infant on its mother's lap.

FURNITURE CO. HOLDS OUTING

More than 300 employes of the Prime Furniture Company of Washington street, Boston, enjoyed an outing at Centennial Grove, Essex.

The party was headed by Abraham Cohen, proprietor of the store, and who furnished the refreshments served under the pine trees.

Features of the outing were a baseball game in which warehouse employes beat store employes, 13 to 11, and a tug-of-war.

On the ball field before the game field sports were run off for which attractive prizes were awarded. Miss Edna Cohen won the opening event, a 40-yard dash.

The winners of the other events were:

One hundred-yard dash, Morris Koren; 50-yard dash for girls over 12 years, Ruth Colburn; candy race for children, Robert Cohen; three-legged race for girls, Miss Frances Berliner and Miss Helen Gwasser; three-legged race for men, Sumner Cohen and Murray Goldstein; potato race, Mary McArdle.

The committee in charge of the outing was composed of Leo Kopel, chairman; Leo Reinberg, John Nailing and Richard Keene.

SIX DIE WHEN SLEEPER BURNS, THREE MISSING

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 18 (A.P.).—The number of persons burned to death when fire destroyed a Union Pacific tourist sleeper near Crystal siding, Nev., Wednesday, probably will never be known, Coroner Breeze of Las Vegas said today. Investigation revealed at least six perished, while Conductor L. S. Atkinson said three passengers were traveling in the sleeper on local tickets and were not on the train when it resumed its journey.

OLD TEACHER FINDS FIRST LADY 'JUST THE SAME'

Washington, June 18.—The same smile and very high ideals are with Mrs. Calvin Coolidge today that made her a popular girl in Burlington, Vt., twenty years ago.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, former Sunday school teacher of the now White House mistress, is authority for this statement.

Mrs. Wheeler, stopping off on her homeward trip from California, called at the White House and was cordially received. She and Mrs. Coolidge exchanged compliments and reminiscences.

MORE WORRIES SOLVED BY HOPE EDEN

Mind Reader Answers Many Queries Submitted by American Readers

The Boston Evening American today presents another batch of answers to questions submitted by readers to Miss Hope Eden, mind reader, who is appearing at the Columbia Theatre. The answers follow:

Marie—You have reason to worry about your son. The boy means no harm, but has been thrown into the wrong companionship. His love for you should be appealed to.

Charles M. C.—The pessimistic frame of mind that you are in will not aid you in procuring a position. Try to get a different outlook on life.

Marguerite P. C.—Your husband will receive the bonus.

Marge—You have been longing to lop off your (so-called) crowning glory for quite some time. Why not have the courage of your convictions?

Elizabeth—You will meet with a certain amount of success in your business career, but you will not remain in it very long. I can see you becoming a far more successful housewife.

Joseph W. R.—I realize and sympathize with you in your present position. You will be a winner.

Amrad—The rheumatic condition to which you refer is not going to improve until you adopt simple living.

K. M.—Feel that you will be able to weather the storm this year and 1927 will be good financially.

Barbara—Your children are fairly well established where you are. I would not advise their coming to this country.

Narcissus—Would advise your remaining in the position you now hold. You will better yourself next March.

S. W. S.—By all means pursue your intended studies in New York.

Isabella—Would not advise your tying up any more money in the investment to which you refer.

Mrs. F. A. D.—You are run down physically. Drop your pessimistic views and the world will improve.

Doubtful T.—How long must you wait? Even the "maiden's prayer" was answered, you know, so don't become discouraged. Just keep on praying.

Typewriter—Your letter stating that I had aided you and made you happier is gratifying. Your mother's condition will improve but she will hardly regain her normal state of health.

Alice—Would not advise your making the contemplated change in your house.

E. B. C.—The person to whom you refer is absolutely unworthy of your consideration. Give up all thought of him.

P. F.—I feel that the friend to whom you refer is going to make a partial payment on the sum that is owed. A full payment at this time will be impossible.

Louise—You seem to be associated with someone who is trying to persuade you against following out your plans. Depend upon your own judgment. Your own ideas are usually best.

Marc Connelly Will Write Film Comedy

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—Marc Connelly has picked for himself pleasant assignment of writing an original comedy for Beatrice Lillie.

I knew the moment that I heard Marc had brought his typewriter and parked it on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot he would choose a job he could handle with eclat (five dollar word). With such stage comedies as "Ladies First," "Dulcy," "The Wisdom Tooth," etc., etc., to his credit it is only natural that he would want to repeat his success on the screen.

Beatrice Lillie

And mentioning Beatrice Lillie and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer brings fourth an interesting announcement. I buttonholed Louis B. Mayer as he was trying to leave the M. G. M. studio and faced him with the question.

"Has Beatrice Lillie signed with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer?"

He pleaded guilty to having placed her on a long time contract. Furthermore when Marc Connelly finishes writing his first story for M. G. M. it will be turned over to Samuel Taylor, who will direct the popular stage comedienne. In other words Mr. Connelly and Miss Lillie will make their screen debut together with Sam Taylor in charge.

I SUPPOSE my readers are saying, what about "Corporal Kate." Well, using the old bromidic but nevertheless effective words of "many a slip 'twixt cup and lip," I want to say the contract was all drawn and ready for the signature of Miss Lillie when she exercised her woman's privilege and changed her mind. However, Jack Buchanan, Miss Lillie's stage partner, will play opposite Vera Reynolds, who has the feminine lead.

Vera Reynolds

Julie Faye, who did such splendid work in the "Volga Boatman," writes to tell me that she is playing a part in "Corporal Kate."

RONALD COLMAN has torn up his contract with Samuel Goldwyn or shall I say Samuel Goldwyn put a match to Colman's contract? Take your choice. At any rate the agreement existing between them was put into the discard. No, you are wrong. There was no argument, or fight, just a determination on Samuel Goldwyn's part to give Colman due recognition for his increasing popularity. The new contract gives Colman a large increase in salary, just how much neither side is willing to say, but enough so that today Ronald Colman will rank as one of the highest paid male stars in the film business.

Ronald Colman

ONE of the most significant announcements made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is the determination of Louis B. Mayer to produce a series of western pictures. Not the every day common garden variety of western thrillers mind you but the type that will be synonomous with "The Big Parade," "Ben Hur," "La Boehme" and other similar productions.

Louis B. Mayer

Colonel Tim McCoy has been persuaded to leave his ranch in Wyoming to appear in these films, and a class of stories are being chosen that are expected to lend a certain dignity to this class of entertainment. I say this is a significant announcement because to me it shows the trend of popular appeal. In other words, there is a demand for cowboys the Indians and the atmosphere that the real West stands for and M. G. M. is going to give.

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK'S presence in Hollywood has created considerable interest. Is he or is he not going to make a picture? That is the question. From the look in his eye I suspect "Hitchy" of nurturing plans for a "fillum."

In fact, under cross examination he tells me that he may make a series of two reelers in black face. He has had the offer and California looks good to him. Talk about the man who sat on a chair on the boulevard in Paris and watched the world go by. Please excuse my mixed up quotation, but you know what I mean. It seems to me the world is all coming to California. You see so many familiar faces at the Ambassador, the Biltmore and the Montmartre you think you must be in New York.

Raymond Hitchcock

ANSWERING a hurry call from New York, Paul Bern reached town with typewriter, notebook and pencil all ready to begin work on the scenario of "Francois Villon," which Jack Barrymore will make as his next picture. I suspect, however, that work will be held up until Barrymore returns from the Honolulu boat races, for after a discussion I had with him I know he has definite ideas on the filming of the story of the vagabond Pote.

John Barrymore

'OPERATOR' IS TITLE NOW

Distinguishing them from conductors and motormen, operators of Boston Elevated one-man cars will, in the future, wear badges designating them as such.

The "operator" badge made its first appearance on the Clarendon Hill, Somerville, line and will be followed quickly by all other divisions. Heretofore "conductor" or "motorman" were the titles appearing on the badges of the operators.

DIES IN TELLING OF AUTO CRASH

Westfield, June 18.—Involved in a minor automobile accident here, Edwin A. Beckwith, an aged Granville farmer, died of heart failure, induced by excitement of the collision.

Beckwith found his wife at the home of Mrs. Reuben Noble of Court street, where she was visiting, and started to tell her of the accident, when he toppled over dead.

VERSATILE MUSICIANS AT METROPOLITAN NEXT WEEK

"Charleston," Boris Petroff's Publix Revue, which comes to the Metropolitan stage next week, boasts, among other things, what is reputed to be the most versatile trio of musicians appearing on the stage, namely, the three De Crescent brothers.

The three boys have gained for themselves a national reputation through their association with leading night clubs in New York, Chicago, Detroit and other cities, together with their headline appearances in vaudeville. Each member of the trio can skillfully play seven musical instruments which, if mathematics don't fail us, means twenty-one in all. In fact, it is their boast that there's no instrument in vogue now that one of 'em can't play. And they're noted for their perfect rythm.

"Charleston" is said to make the most of the nation's latest exercise, what with eleven girls from eleven principal cities, champions all, doing their stuff.

B. U. GRADUATE GOES TO BROOKLINE CHURCH

Rev. Donald C. Beatty, who was gradrated this week from Boston University School of Theology, has accepted the position as assistant pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Church, Brookline. His work will be in the church school and among young people. Rev. William R. Leslie is pastor of this church.

Chairman of Coalition Ticket Declares All Was Not Harmonious in Ranks

Washington, June 18.—Changing its program in order to take another peep behind the scenes of the Pepper-Pinchot-Vare senatorial fight in Western Pennsylvania, the Senate campaign [illegible] today again kept Wayne B. Wheeler waiting to resume the witness stand and renew his joust with Chairman Reed over activities of the Anti-Saloon League.

[illegible] Fisher Wood, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the campaign committee for the Pepper-Fisher [illegible] in 31 western counties, was [illegible] the work of the committee. He said its "efforts did not include Allegheny county (Pittsburgh)."

John S. Fisher, the successful candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, selected most of those who made up the coalition organization, Wood explained. There were members from every one of the 31 counties.

When Fisher announced for the Governorship he endorsed the candidacy of Senator Pepper, the witness said.

"That, I take it, was the engagement which resulted in the complete marriage of these two tickets," observed Senator Reed.

"Well, in some [illegible] there was [illegible]," said Wood.

Radio Queries

Q.—M. L. C., New Bedford. Will [illegible] where Stations W[illegible] and WJK are located? I never heard them on the air till last night, May 17, at 10:0 E. S. T. I was listening in on KDKA and I heard what sounded like an SOS [illegible] and turned my Master dial back one point and then heard a voice. The conversation lasted about ten [illegible] but he didn't say who he was. [illegible] have a [illegible] synchrophase [illegible] operated by storage A and B batteries.

A.—[illegible] directory of broadcasting [illegible] no record of [illegible]. The calls [illegible] U. S. Army. [illegible] may write to the Supervisor of [illegible] Custom House, Boston, for further details.

Q.—A. B. H., Haverhill. I am so situated that I cannot put up an outside aerial, but right in front of my house there is a long guy wire which runs to a high telegraph pole. What do you think of the idea of using this guy wire as my aerial? Would it work?

A. I think the guy wire would work O. K. for you. It would be advisable, though, to put a .00025 M. F. condenser in series with it, so that in case of current leaking from the pole, it would not enter your set. You must bear in mind that the results from such an antenna would naturally be affected by the guy being grounded at one end.

Q.—G. H. L., Quincy. I have just fitted my [illegible] set with one of the new UX171 power tubes. A friend told me I had better use an output transformer with it, so as not to damage the cone type speaker. Is he right or wrong, and why?

A. The use of an output transformer is always advisable, when any great amount of power is used in the last audio stage. This keeps the direct current of the plate circuit out of the loudspeaker windings and removes a considerable portion of the load therefrom.

Q.—W. V. C. H., Providence. We would like to know the difference in resistance for loop reception between 100 feet of single number 18 stranded lamp cord and 100 feet of imported Litz wire.

A.—I have no figures here on the resistance of the lamp cord, and as you do not specify the size of Litz wire, I cannot give you the resistance of that item. From a practical standpoint, however, you will find little difference between the use of lamp cord or Litz, in a loop aerial at broadcast wavelengths, because the real efficiency of Litz does not become apparent unless longer waves are used. Below 600 meters, you will get excellent reception with a loop comprised of ordinary lamp cord, whereas with Litz, you would detect no practical difference.

Q.—W. J. C., Boston. I have a five-tube Poly Royal set. It works O. K. on local stations, but when I try for distance all I get is squeals and a hum. I will appreciate any information you can give in your Radio Queries column.

A.—Don't be too anxious to get distance. At the present time nobody is having any success. Perhaps if you lived in a first class location, out in the country, and sat up till about four o'clock in the morning, you might bring in something further away than New York. This however, would be problematical, and hardly worth while striving for. You will know it quickly enough, when conditions start to improve. Be patient until next January, or thereabouts.

Q.—M. M. N., South Boston. Can a UX210 tube be used in the last stage of a Freshman Masterpiece receiver?

A.—The UX210 cannot be used in the last stage of the Freshman Masterpiece or in any similar receiver, unless a special provision is made for the use of extra high plate voltage, a grid biasing battery, and a filament potential of eight volts. This tube is used to best advantage when the filament is lighted on stepped-down A. C., and supplied by rectified A. C. on the plate, at a potential of between 300 and 450 volts.

I find it safer to wash clothes
—this easy way

I USED to have to rub and scrub cuffs, collars, hems, etc., to get them clean and white. No wonder they became frayed and threadbare so quickly.

But no more hard rubbing for me now. I just soak my week's wash in Rinso suds—then rinse—and my washing is done—safely. Clothes get whiter and brighter than ever before.

No washboard rubbing—even the most soiled spots become snowy with a rub or two between the fingers.

Rinso makes the water wonderfully soft and sudsy. It saves my hands, too. They never get red and washworn now.

BYRD WELCOME TO BE BROADCAST TUESDAY

The State of Virginia will be signally honored next Tuesday on the occasion of the ceremonies attendant upon the welcome home from the North Pole to be extended Lieutenant-Commander Richard R. Byrd at the City Hall, New York city at which Governor Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia and Congressman Clifton E. Woodrum of the Sixth District, Virginia, will be present.

Their voices, together with that of Senator Swanson of Virginia and Lieutenant Commander Byrd will be carried back to "Ole Virginny" through the radio station WOR.

HURLS SELF IN FRONT OF TRUCK TO SAVE OTHERS

Seattle, June 18.—Acclaimed on all sides for his heroic act, J. B. Silver, a truck driver, was dead here today after hurling himself in front of his own runaway car to keep it from crashing into a group of pedestrians.

Silver parked his machine on a steep hill and jumped out to deliver some goods. When a few feet from the car he noticed that the brakes had slipped and that the car was starting down the hill headed for a group of persons, among which was a baby and her mother.

Without hesitating a moment, Silver threw himself in front of the truck. As the wheels passed over his body a man jumped into the driver's seat and applied the emergency brake, sufficiently checking the flight of the car to allow the persons in its path to escape.

Horribly crushed Silver was taken to the City Hospital where he died a few hours later.

Silver's wife died a few months ago.

TAX COLLECTOR HELD FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Thompsonville, Ct., June 18.—Clark J. Hamilton, tax collector of the town of Enfield, was arraigned before Judge G uy F. Bushnell on a complaint charging embezzlement of $.,0 0 of public money. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued for a week pending an audit of the town accounts.

"Poor Eyes" Mean Poor Work

Bad eyes cause jumpy nerves and splitting headaches that make concentration impossible. Lacking concentration you fall short of real success.

Poor eyesight is responsible for most nervous troubles.

Irritability, indigestion, morbidity, "that tired feeling" and "blues" are only a few of the ills traceable to the same source. An early visit to our office would help hundreds of people now handicapped by nerves and constant fatigue.

Don't be sure that poor eyesight is not holding you back in business until you're certain

We make a competent, thorough examination by the latest approved scientific methods and furnish proper glasses at a very moderate charge.

"Fed up" on ordinary Cereals?

THE finest thing you can do for yourself and yours at breakfast is to provide a change in menu. Appetites grow stale and people weary of eating the same old "seven and six" breakfasts.

Try Quaker Puffed Wheat. It's different in every way from any other cereal known—whole wheat steam exploded to 8 times natural size, then oven crisped to rare deliciousness. Tastes like toasted nutmeats.

Approximately 20% is bran but you would never guess it. Children love it like a confection. For the Great Adventure of a change, get a package at any grocery store—just try it.

FILENE'S HOST TO ITS 3,500 EMPLOYES

Enjoyable Outing Is Held at Wrentham; Long List of Sport Events

As guests of the firm, more than 3,500 members of the Filene Co-operative Association, composed of employes of the William Filene's Sons Company, made merry at Lake Pearl, Wrentham, enjoying all the delights of an all day outing in perfect weather.

The outing was the first tendered the employes by the Filene Company and nothing was omitted in entertainment and catering to make the affair notable.

Headed by the Filene band, resplendent in new uniforms with Sam Brown belts, the merrymakers paraded from the store to the South Station whence they were transported to Wrentham in a special train of two sections.

The members of the firm, headed by Vice President E. J. Frost, representing E. A. and A. L. Filene and L. A. Kirstein, who are in Europe, participated in the day's gaiety. They included B. F. Raphael, R. L. Harlow, A. W. Wright, Thomas Lyford, L. S. Bitner and Austin Benton, all directors.

PROGRAM VARIED.

A long and varied program of dancing, music, prize track and stunt events, baseball games, bathing, canoeing and refreshments provided lively interest and amusement.

Winners in the strenuously competed athletic events and amusing stunt events to whom were awarded substantial prizes, gifts of the firm, included 50-yard dash, girls, Anna Cobb; three-legged race, girls, Anna Cobb and Mary Flynn; 50-yard dash, boys, J. Farrell; 100 yard dash, men, William Hunt, first, George Toland second; 50 yard dash, boys under 18 Michael Lamerka, 200 yard run, J Farrell; 440 yard run, Milton Glickman, man's three legged race, Max Cohan and Mitchell Lily.

Miss Anna Brennan won the shaving contest, scraping the lather off her victim with a bread knife much sooner than a score of other fair competitors.

GIRLS PLAY BASEBALL.

The Bitner baseball game for girls between the basement and the main store resulted in a victory for the latter. A team representing the mechanical force worsted the elevator force at baseball also

The main baseball game, Filene's vs. Houghton & Dutton, yielded the score Houghton & Dutton , Filene's 3.

Katherine Mitchell, expense office and Max Stander, basement, a member of the baseball team, won the Charleston contest staged during the general dancing in the evening. Miss Keefe and Mr. Smith were judged most graceful in the old time waltz contest

A feature of the outing was the search for the girl with the gold envelope. In it she carried a gift bond for a handsome spanish shawl Joseph Seig of the basement store personnel tagged her first.

26TH OFFICERS AT SCHOOL

The officer personnel of the 26th Division is at Camp Devens, under orders of Major General Edward L. Logan, to attend school of instruction. The school will break up Sunday.

Sessions today will include terrain exercise, map problems, and tactical walks. Regular army officers are the school instructors

CONGRESS MAY QUIT WITH BIG ACTS IN AIR

Washington, June 18 (A P)—Congressional leaders are planning to [illegible] a week from tomorrow. A number of important measures, tangled in the churning current of controversy, probably [illegible] abandoned until next session.

[illegible] leaders oppose adjournment [illegible] action on the Rivers [illegible] which has been passed by the House and has stirred [illegible] the Senate over [illegible] provisions [illegible] in the [illegible].

[illegible] are confident [illegible] for adjournment sine die June 26. They are expected to offer a resolution to this end in the House Monday, and it will have the support of Speaker Longworth, Representative Tilson, Republican floor leader, and Chairman Snell of the Rules Committee, who have discussed adjournment with President Coolidge.

Adjournment eight days hence also meets with favor among Senate Republican leaders, and Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, thinks it would be a good thing for the nation. Chairman Madden, of the House appropriations committee has indicated he would oppose the resolution pending final action on the Rivers and Harbors bill.

With June 26 looming as adjournment day, the fate of farm relief legislation becomes a matter of conjecture. In addition of the Rivers and Harbors bill, hope seems to have diminished below the vanishing point for action on the French debt settlement, Muscle Shoals, coal and prohibition legislation.

Farm relief, the radio control bill and a deficiency appropriation measure which will permit work to start on the $165,000,000 public buildings program, will be presented on the McNary equalization fee bill.

BILL PENSIONS MOTHERS

Washington, June 18 (Universal).—Congress today passed the mother's pension bill for the District of Columbia, removing the stigma of charity and providing that mother's aid for care of dependent children shall be provided them through a separate division of the district board of public welfare.

Its aim is to enable the dependent children to be cared for in homes, rather than in public institutions. It also seeks to enable the mothers to obtain the aid without applying like mendicants to the old charity institutions.

The bill now awaits the signature of President Coolidge.

ALIEN VETERAN BILL PASSES

Washington, June 18 (Universal).—Without a dissenting vote the Senate tonight passed the Tilson Wadsworth Jones bill authorizing the shipping board to furnish transportation at cost to foreign-born American war veterans who have been detained abroad because of quota provisions of the immigration laws.

Hailed by Senate leaders in both parties as "a real effort by the American Congress to right a wrong done to thousands of men who fought under the stars and stripes on Flanders fields," the bill was reported from the Senate commerce committee by its chairman, Senator Wesley Jones, of Washington.

It now goes to the House, where it already has been favorably reported. Representative John Q. Tilson, author of the House bill and Republican floor leader, expressed the belief that the House will pass it next week.

TARNISHED WINGS

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES" and "PIRATE OF HEARTS"

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

Some woman instinct told her that it was the Man in Gray. He was looking at her intently.

READ THIS FIRST

MARY ANN LOCKE, whose nickname, MERRY, perfectly describes her falls in love with an unknown man she passes every day on the street. She calls him the Man in Gray, and tells her younger sister, JINNY, that she is in love for the first time in her life. Jinny giggles because she knows how many so-called "love affairs" Merry had had. Only the night before, DERRICK JONES had kissed her out in the hammock in the backyard of their Arlington home

On her twentieth birthday Merry decides that she will make the Man in Gray speak to her. And that noon, when she leaves a Boylston street business college to get her lunch, she drops her handbag at his feet as she passes him. She smiles, but without a word he gives her the bag and goes on. Merry feels as if he had rebuked her for trying to flirt with him.

She fails in two of her school tests. Merry dreads the thought of telling this bit of bad news to her mother. Moms has a bad time trying to bring up four daughters on DAD'S tiny salary.

HELEN, the oldest sister, has baked a birthday cake, and Dad gives Merry five dollars for a present. Merry sees CASSIE, the successful member of the family, drive up with the Man in Gray. Cassie refuses to tell Merry who he is or anything about him.

Merry decides to take Jinny to the circus.

COMEAU TRIO TO FACE COURT AGAIN

TRIAL ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Deshon, Toothaker and Sambursky Will Be Given Hearing Early Next Week

A speedy trial on robbery and breaking and entering charges will be given Albert Deshon, convicted of manslaughter in connection with the killing of Policeman Frank J. Comeau in Dorchester, and Stanley Toothaker and John R Sambursky, acquitted of killing by a jury.

This was stated today by Assistant District Attorney Timothy Callahan who prosecuted the murder charges and who said the District Attorney has ordered him to prepare to try the three boys anew within a week.

The three will be tried jointly on burglary charges and charges of breaking and entering in the night time and larceny while armed. Deshon and Sambursky will be tried together on a charge of robbery while armed.

HOLDUPS INVOLVED

The cases involved are various, including the holdup of Smith's drug store in Dorchester when Deshon was wounded by a clerk and the burglary of the Appelbaum house in Johnston road, Mattapan just prior to the shooting of Policeman Comeau.

In the Appelbaum case Sambursky already had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering in the night time and larceny while Deshon and Toothaker pleaded not guilty.

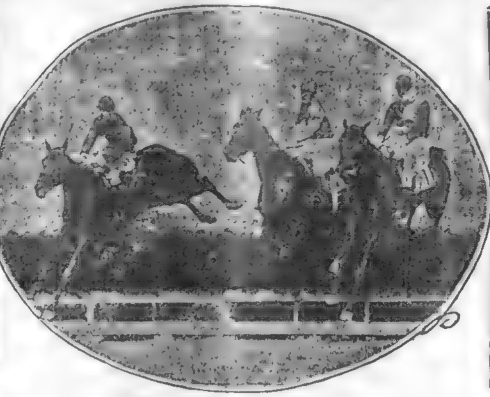
COUNTRY CLUB RACES FURNISH THRILLS GALORE TO HUB'S ELECT

TIMBER TOPPERS ALL, WHETHER THE BARRIERS BE THOSE OF THE RACE TRACK OR SOCIETY

EYES ON TRACK
Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, soon to entertain Swedish royalty, is a keen race follower.

DURING A LULL
Time off for a little conversation was snatched by S. Hooper Hooper (left), Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and Reginald Boardman at the Clyde Park races.



GOING OVER A HURDLE
Prentice Talmage's Beau Brummel, 3d, F. De Collier up (left); J. R. Macomber's Pete the Scribe, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., up (centre), and A. C. Bostwick's Coolgardie, owner up (right), going over the final hurdle in the Challenge Cup Steeplechase for Hunters held over the Clyde Park course at the Country Club.

IN THE SHADE
Not, however, socially speaking, as Mrs. Allan Forbes was the centre of much attention.

ALL ATTENTION
Miss Penelope Curtis had eyes for King Horse only during the 26th running of the Challenge Cup for Hunters over the Clyde Park course.

SOCIETY HORSEMEN WIN APPLAUSE

RIGHT ROYALLY, AS THE SUPREME SPECTACLE OF the entire year, did the famous old-time Country Club Races come into their own again, staging a perfect comeback (after a lapse of some ten years or more) under the direction of the Eastern Horse Club potentates.

WITH A SKY of clear June brilliance, and track conditions well nigh perfect, race after race "in the flat" and steeplechase "in the open" furnished thrills galore for the throngs. And indeed it was a record-breaking crowd that surged [illegible] out, from boxes to promenade and [illegible] again to see every incident of [illegible] afternoon.

TRULY IT WAS a gala day, from the moment when Society by the hundreds gathered in the comfortable old clubhouse for luncheon, (served in the [illegible] and at small tables all about the spacious enclosed verandas) to the final bugle call as the last tallyho coach headed out and away to town.

EVERY SINGLE BOX of the [illegible] [illegible] filled with a gay company. Another [illegible] viewed the races from the grandstands. Still another chose for its vantage point the shady lawns directly in front of the clubhouse itself. And all about the track, in a cordon dozens deep, enthusiasts gathered for closeups of the finishes.

SOCIETY WITH a capital "S," the very smartest of the smart of Boston, was in attendance. "Everyone" was there, from the "A's" of the Social Register right through to the "Z's" of that same exclusive little book.

QUITE TO THE FORE in the throng was the petite Miss Mary Weld, smart in a frock of green. Miss Weld, as an Eastern Horse Club member and owner of [illegible] the steeplechaser recently brought over from England, was more than a little interested in the events.

ALSO OF THOSE specially interested, through Eastern Horse Club membership, were the John P. Bowditches. At luncheon at the clubhouse and later in their box Mrs. Bowditch was a modish figure in melon-pink crepe and hat of brown.

MISS MARY POST in gray, Miss Elisabeth Stackpole in mauve, Mrs. John Reed Post in blue and black; Mr. and Mrs. Manning Emory (the latter in oyster white crepe) and Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Appleton, Jr., Mrs. Appleton wearing frock and hat of leaf green, were also at the clubhouse for luncheon before the races.

NATURALLY, MRS. ALVIN F. SORTWELL, who brought her small cunning daughters to the spectacle, was much interested especially in those events in which Mr. Sortwell (the popular "Pete") rode. Mrs. Sortwell was of those [illegible] at the clubhouse.

THE ROBERT LEESONS [illegible] at luncheon and later in their box an animated picture. Mrs. Leeson trim and trig in a scarlet print (one of those so favored for spring frocks) and Miss Loraine Leeson (honored at Vassar) in white were smart to a degree.

MR. AND MRS. LORING UNDERWOOD, with a family group, including their attractive daughter, Miss Lorna Underwood, in printed crepe, and Miss Claribel Walton in blue, were at luncheon. Also Mr. and Mrs. J. Lovell Little, Mrs. Little wearing black and white.

LUNCHING at the clubhouse and viewing the races from her box, the handsome Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper was specially attractive in floating printed [illegible] and black hat. Another [illegible] was Miss Kat[illegible] [illegible] in the art firmament, [illegible] and match[illegible] small hat.

LOVELY YOUNG WOMEN of the Fashionables, moving blithely from box to paddock or surging out to watch the [illegible] brought all the colors of the kaleidoscope to the picture. Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, in tan, was such a one.

ALSO, MRS. CHARLIE CHOATE, 3d; Mrs. Robert Choate (she and Mr. Choate spend much of their time in Washington), Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., Mrs. John S. Lawrence, Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr., Mrs. Henry St. John Smith, Mrs. W. Davies Sohier, and Mrs. Francis Bacon Lothrop.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES PELHAM CURTIS, Jr., had their two little girls with them; Reginald Boardman with Mrs. Boardman (chic in pansy red), [illegible] with the Wallace Goodriches. Mrs. Goodrich was very handsome in dark blue touched with brightest scarlet.

THE GEORGE S. WESTS, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., striking in deep red, her sister the former Sybil Appleton, now Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, in printed silk; Mrs. Thomas Proctor Mandell, Mrs. John T. J. Clunie, Mrs. John MacDuffie, 3d, Miss Olivia Ames, Mrs. "Freddy" Busk and Miss Mary Otis, each added a bit of loveliness.

AS EXPONENTS of what is charming in frocks and chapeaux [illegible] feminine [illegible] the [illegible] Miss Penelope and Miss Margaret Curtis dressed in similar [illegible] Miss Mary [illegible] lovely in white, Miss Betty [illegible] and Miss Helen Lovering, both pretty as could be, one in pink, the other in blue.

OTHER PRETTY FEMININE light[illegible] [illegible] first appearance [illegible] were Miss Dorothy Lawrence, Miss [illegible] and Miss Nancy Patten, Miss Theresa Winsor in blue, Miss Hope Patterson in white and Miss Harriet Morse, in tan and white.

F. MURRAY FORBES, with Mrs. Forbes (in brown) and their two small daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft with a young set group; Mr. Robert Forbes Perkins surrounded by members of his family, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Rogers (Mrs. Rogers [illegible] bright [illegible]) Mrs. William A. [illegible] [illegible] and becomingly gowned [illegible] important parts of the gay kaleidoscope.

GEORGE VON L. MEYER, JR., just back from short European trip, [illegible] W. Palmer, [illegible] (with two young hopefuls) [illegible] W. Appleton, A. Henry Higginson, [illegible] Shaw, B. Nason [illegible] Leverett Saltonstall and Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., of the horsey set, naturally were prominent.

LIKEWISE, MRS. BAYARD THAYER'S box party, where her [illegible] Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer [illegible] Ruth Thayer and Mrs. [illegible] the popular "[illegible] Thayer" [illegible] forth each rating [illegible] on the list of [illegible] Bostonians.

MISS JEAN SEARS was with the Thayer group, also Nathaniel Thayer, son of the house. Nearby, Mrs. Francis P. Sears, extremely lovely in pale gray silk and [illegible] floppy straw chapeau and Mrs. Rudolph Weld in the new sunn[illegible] yellow, were noted in the ultra [illegible].

ALL IN CREPE of hyacinthe blue Mrs. Charles P. Greenough, 2d, with the many others of her smart circle, attended the spectacle. Mrs. A. Lithgow Devens in tan, Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth in the same soft and always becoming color, and Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, likewise in tan, were of the matrons who moved blithely about.

MR. AND MRS. ALLAN FORBES with their children, the lovely Mrs. Forbes turned out in white and [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cameron Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, Mrs. Hallowell also in tan, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Russell [illegible] the fortunes of the racers.

DISTINCTLY HANDSOME and holding a little court as usual, Mrs. DeForest [illegible] was a [illegible] figure in [illegible] part [illegible] of the [illegible] Mr. S. Hooper Hooper in the prescribed attire for the races was a popular and oft-greeted figure.

PERHAPS THE DAY'S most spectacular picture aside from the racing came from the [illegible] who coaches tooled by expert whips. Mr. Samuel Shaw in topper and [illegible] drove [illegible] the Copley Plaza [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] brilliant spectacle.

Spills Registered in Steeplechase Event at Country Club

Some riders in the Twenty-Sixth Challenge Cup Steeplechase for Hunters left their mounts in rather unconventional style over the necks of the horses.

C. V. B. Cushman's Captain Schneller, Walter J. Salmon's Red Hawk, the Lynmere Stables Peccant, and the Windburn Stables Oyster Bed either threw their riders or ran off the course. No serious injuries were reported.

FEAR LOLLYPOP STARTED PANIC

New York, June 18 (A. P.)—Licorice lollypops in the shape of black hands, are blamed by Dr. William J. O'Shea, superintendent of schools, for four near panics among children at East Side public schools in two weeks.

Two children were injured in a mad scramble for exits in the latest disturbance after a cry of "Black Hand" by some of the youngsters at School No. 65. Dr. O'Shea believes the lollypops suggested the cry to young mischief makers of [illegible].

School had to be dismissed when frantic parents, most of them of foreign extraction, surrounded the building. Six policemen were required to keep them in order while the pupils were filing out.

AIR DEFENSE UP TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Washington, June 18 (Universal)—Aroused by scorching attack on the nation's inadequacy in air defense by Col. William Mitchell and other experts, the Senate and House have put finishing touches on a five year expansion program for the [illegible] [illegible] to cost $43,[illegible].

The bill now goes to President Coolidge for his signature. [illegible]

Authorized in the measure is [illegible] construction of 1,[illegible] [illegible] at a total cost of $[illegible] [illegible] final [illegible]. At the end of five years, allowing for replacements, this will provide a fleet [illegible] modern machines.

Two [illegible] to cost $[illegible] are also authorized. These will be of the [illegible] Los Angeles type, with improvements.

Construction of a metal club-dirigible, for experimental purposes, to cost $500,000 is also provided.

HERRIOT SPOILS BRIAND'S PLAN

Paris, June 18 (I. N. S.)—Aristide Briand's dream of an all parties Cabinet [illegible] Herriot, leader of the Radicals, and [illegible] leader of the [illegible], was blasted today, when [illegible] Socialists an[illegible] their refusal to [illegible].

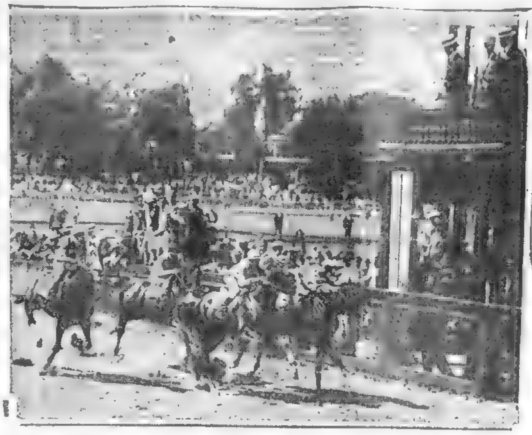
A STIRRING FINISH AND BOSTON'S SOCIETY MATRONS WHO PAID TRIBUTE TO KING HORSE

RACE ENTHUSIAST
Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., was an especially attentive spectator at the Country Club races.

INTERESTED
Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons followed the horses closely.



FINISH OF "THE MILLWOOD"
Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Jenny Deans (E. T. Thorndyke up) winning "The Millwood" on Clyde Park course. J. F. Macomber's Millennium (P. Dougherty up) finished second, and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Teal (R. Rose up) was third. Beau Geste also ran.

KEEN SPORTSWOMAN
Mrs. William A. Barron, Jr., was one of the younger members of Boston's Smart Set who was observed as well as observing.

KEEPING CLOSE TAB
Mrs. Wallace Goodrich didn't miss a point that was scored by the Country Club races.

GORGEOUS GOWNS WORN AT RACES

Madame and Mademoiselle Boston were lovely to behold at the Country Club races. From the tip of her trim shoe to the top of her charmingly covered head, alluringly feminine and fetching to a degree, each maid and matron was a target for admiring glances.

[illegible] to set off her [illegible] white [illegible] favorite for a [illegible] June day. Wide and drooping hats, and saucy small chapeaux were equal favorites. Of the former, gleaming black straws were both chic and greatly in demand. And when such a hat is worn with the right frock, preferably a silk or transparent crepe, the effect is everything the feminine heart could desire.

[illegible] Mesdames [illegible] Russell, N. Penrose Hallowell and Mrs. A. [illegible] gow Dexter there's nothing [illegible] to be desired in the way of attractive feminine attire.

Verily the vogue of the sweater is a happy one. Lovely knitted things in the softest of pastel shades, were paraded by their modish wearers, in the clubhouse, in the stands and at the jumps. Miss Jean Sears wore a rich angora, light as thistledown and of a pinkish orchid tone. It was immensely becoming.

Mrs. Theodore Frothingham's [illegible] sweater and narrowly [illegible] skirt, a combination of [illegible] ness, by the way, both were in crushed strawberry pink. Mrs. Lothrop Ames and [illegible] the tan for their sweaters.

Beau Brummel, 3d, Was Game to Core

No horse ever showed more gameness than did the aged Beau Brummel, 3d, in capturing the 26th challenge cup race at Clyde Park. Courage, pure, and simple, enabled the Prentis Talmadge entry to win over a classy field.

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, Cub pitcher, who drew an indefinite suspension from Manager Joe McCarthy at Philadelphia for breaking training rules, is back in Chicago professing penitence, but also expressing a desire to see President Veeck of the Cubs.

Veeck was in his office throughout yesterday and said Alexander had made no attempt to see him as far as he knew.

"I don't see what purpose Alexander would serve in seeing me," Veeck said.

"I have the utmost respect for McCarthy's judgment. He had plenty of provocation for what he did in the Alexander case and you can say for me that I will back McCarthy's judgment."

Alexander said he wanted to go out to the ball park and start work back into condition.

Two of Boston's Large Clothing Manufacturers Forced Into Liquidation

I buy their stock from Harry Frieze & Co. for about one-quarter of the cost of same. Worsted Suitings, fine woolens, wonderful Knitted Fabrics, and a wonderful variety of colorings such as a high-priced ready-made manufacturer would use to cut up into Suits and Overcoats to sell retail from $35 to $50. I bought the materials and offer them to Mitchell The Tailor's customers.

WOOLENS
[illegible]
BOSTON, MASS. JUNE 10, 1926.

Mitchell the Tailor,
279 Washington St.,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

We have agreed to accept your spot cash offer for the entire stock of woolens of the Pilgrim Clothing Co., recently in liquidation. We believe the price paid by you for this stock is about half of the cost.

We are sending the swatches now. The overcoatings will follow when thoroughly sponged and examined.

Yours very truly,
HARRY FRIEZE & CO.

SUIT $15.75 to your measure

I know the season is not right for Overcoatings, but when you take Wanskuck Whitney Weave Overcoatings, high grade American Woolen Co. Plaid Backs and a number of other fine mills, fine faced fabrics that are made to sell retail around $35 to $50, and realize that I am offering to make these to your measure now at a price of $19.75, you should take advantage.

OVERCOAT $19.75 to your measure

This is my introductory notice of my purchase of two of Boston's leading clothiers' liquidated stocks.

P. S.—A number of Strong & Hewat's Coatings, pure virgin wool fabrics, included at the above price.

STARS BATTLE FOR N. E. TRACK HONORS

Close to one hundred of the leading amateur athletes of this section of the country will compete in the annual outdoor New England A. A. U. athletic championships which will be held on tomorrow and Sunday afternoons under the auspices of the Boston Park Department.

There are nineteen championship events on the two-day program. The javelin, hammer and discus throw will be held tomorrow afternoon at Tech Field, Cambridge, while the other events will be a treat for the Sunday folks and will be held at Franklin Field, Blue Hill and Talbot avenues, Dorchester, Sunday at 2 o'clock sharp.

Athletic Director Albert Geiger, Jr., chairman of the New England A. A. U. championship committee, is in charge, being assisted by John A. Lane of the Boston Park Department. Honorary officials will be Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, Park Commissioner James B. Shea, [illegible] City Commissioner William P. Long, President William Kennedy of the N. E. A. A. A. U., William C. Prout, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the A. A. U., Thomas Kelley, Henry Lapham and Major Briggs of the Boston Athletic Association.

There are numerous star performers in each of the nineteen events. What looks like one of the feature attractions of the Saturday [illegible] program will be the throwing of the [illegible]. In this event [illegible] from the B. A. A. [illegible] C. Lawler, [illegible] M. Morris, [illegible], George W. [illegible] Edwin Leahy.

In the discus throwing, Edward Gordon, former world's [illegible] holder of the [illegible] broad jump and ex-Harvard [illegible] has entered as a member of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Gordon will be pitted against Tom [illegible] of Georgetown University, J. [illegible] Lowe of the B. A. A., George Wurzewski, H. F. Snow and Erwin [illegible] of the same organization.

Practically the same group will compete in the javelin throw with the addition of Arthur May of Harvard University, also William H. [illegible] and [illegible] the latter [illegible] unattached.

The Sunday afternoon meet will be featured by a six-mile run with George [illegible], former Boston College [illegible], wearing the colors of the B. A. A., also Edward Bock of the same club, [illegible] Hertigan, Gus Barbaris, Stoughton Civic A. A., Thomas Quinlan, Medford Post American Legion, and numerous other worthy contenders for the New England championship honors.

Lloyd Hahn of the Boston Athletic Association is the favored starter in the one mile classic, pitted against John Hyde of the Brighton Civic A. A., Roy Erickson, Posse Gym club, and both C. L. Salsono and James Bradley running with the emblem of the [illegible].

H. G. Steinbrenner, formerly of M. I. T. and now wearing the Unicorn, is slated to start in the high and low hurdles. He will be remembered last year as winning the events in rare style and he is favored to retain his title for 1926.

Manager Thomas Kanaly is leaving no stones unturned so that the Boston Athletic Association won't take away the bulk of honors in the New England championships. Every event is represented by one or more of the brilliant athletes who appear as favorites to take away the much coveted medal.

THE KID -:- By TAD

He Becomes a Hanger-On

The Life of a Fighter, in Ten Chapters

CHAPTER IX.

THE Kid woke the next day sick and sore, "A Has Been."

The crowd didn't break doors down trying to get in to see him now. A few stragglers blew in to offer him sympathy, but he couldn't hock that. His earnings had been lost the night of the fight and his title was gone. He was at home again with his mother. He was just as big to her. He was just as much of a champion to her without his title

His home was a little world to play to now. He longed for the bigger world, but it was lost to him. He went out on the street, but the crowd jeered him. No one had anything to offer. He had lived, but now he was through. There were lots of has-beens, however. He was one of the many. The new boy who beat him was the King

The Kid went into the saloon and took a few beers. He wanted consolation and the hops were the best he could get. He sat there all day, brooding over his defeat. Some of the loyal backers who had won on him in his prime came in and treated

Day after day the Kid came in and had his beers. His days as a fighter were over. The free-lunch counter was his restaurant. He had his sausage and cheese and stew there three times a day. He got to be a fixture in the place and the customers looked over occasionally to see the ex-champion. They called him the stew bum now, and even his own friends began to sicken at the sight of him

The Kid's brother came in to try to get him home; but no, he would not go. It was too lonesome at home. He had the crowd around him in the saloon, and occasionally drink made him feel good. He used to tell them that no better fellow than himself ever lived "when he had it."

THE CONVENIENT METHOD

A FEW years ago, and even today, apartment hunters walked themselves weary, climbing stairs, ringing bells, constantly seeing unsuitable apartments in their merry hunt for a place to live. Today, the era of efficient methods, the modern apartment hunter turns to the alphabetically arranged classified columns of the Boston Evening American or Boston Advertiser, chooses the suite most suitable to his or her needs, and goes directly to inspect it. No fuss, no tiresome travel. Try it.

P. S.

The same method may be applied as successfully in seeking rooms, homes, jobs or used cars.

The Dawn of a Better Cigarette

We made countless tests to perfect this better cigarette for you

FOR a solid year and a half we canvassed the smokers of America with this question:—

"What's wrong with your favorite blend?"

"Too hot!" said some.

"Burns too fast!" said others.

"Parches the throat!"... said still others.

"Too strong!"... said still others.

Then we went to work .... with the resources of a $100,000,000 organization at our command.

Blend after blend was tested, not only by professional experts but by laymen smokers.

Finally we hit it! A blend meeting all requirements given us by popular poll... a cooler, smoother cigarette... yielding new flavor delight... while velvet to the tongue—and soothing to the throat.

A new Quality in Cigarette enjoyment.

We called the cigarette OLD GOLD. For the name expresses the standards of the brand—the finest existing value standards.

TRY ONE AND YOU'RE WON!

YALE FACES PROBLEM IN RECONSTRUCTING CREW

ELI EAGER TO GATHER NEW CREW

Bill Bingham, the Athletic Director at Harvard, Confers With New Haven Authorities

Gales Ferry, Ct., June 18 (I.N.S.).—Despite protests that are pouring in upon the Yale athletic committee there seems today little chance that a freshman crew can be organized to row against Harvard freshmen here one week from today.

The Yale freshman class has dispersed, its year at New Haven having ended. Besides, any possible candidates for a freshman boat must be examined by physical and medical authorities of the university before they can be seated. Still an effort is being made to round up ten men of the freshman class who are willing to take a chance.

Such were the conclusions reached here when William J. Bingham, chairman of the Harvard Athletic Commission, and Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the Board of Control of Yale Athletics, discussed the entire situation face to face. These two athletic leaders have agreed to forfeit the freshman race to Harvard "if it might ultimately prove impossible to have a freshman race."

The fact that various freshmen rowers violated Yale's honor system and so put a damper on the annual regatta with Harvard has been taken in good spirit by Harvard authorities.

Yale appreciates the fact of "the generous attitude and prompt co-operation of the Harvard athletic representatives in meeting the difficulties of the present situation." Such is the statement issued by Professor Nettleton, who adds: "This incident has confirmed the constant friendship and mutual understanding between Yale and Harvard."

Lancegaye Takes Hardwicke Stakes

Ascot, England, June 18 (A.P.).—W. M. G. Singer's Lancegaye, which finished second in the Derby, won the Hardwicke stakes at a mile and a half here today. The stakes carry 2,000 sovereigns with extras.

For the most valuable race of the day, the Hardwicke stakes of 2,000 sovereigns with extras, there were only three runners of which W. M. G. Singer's Lancegaye got the verdict over Bassoon, with Spartacus third.

Mrs. S. Whitburn's Bassoon was second and Lord Rosebery's Spartacus third. Only three horses ran. Lancegaye was 4 1 to 4 favorite, while odds of 8 to 1 were laid against the other two horses. Lancegaye won by a neck, and Bassoon led Spartacus by two lengths.

LATZO TO FACE TRIO OF CROWN DEFENDERS

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—Pete Latzo, recently crowned welterweight boxing champion, has two fights on his hands, besides the [illegible] affair scheduled for Newark.

Latzo, through his manager, Paddy Mullins, has agreed to meet the winner of the Mickey Walker-Joe Dundee rumpus in Madison Square Garden next Thursday night. He also is said to have agreed to tackle Georgie Levine of Brooklyn at the Polo Grounds July 9.

Morgan Fights Like Terry McGovern

By JACK CONWAY

TOD MORGAN, world's junior lightweight champion, who collides with Babe Herman at the Revere Cycle Track on next Tuesday night, is compared to Terrible Terry McGovern by many experts who have seen him in action. He is one of those aggressive, two handed fighters who keeps going forward every second he is in the ring.

MORGAN first gained fame on the Pacific Coast, then came East where he continued to topple the opposition. He is managed by Frank Churchill who piloted Pancho Villa and Clever Sencio, those two unfortunate Filipino boxers who died following ring contests.

Herman should be a [illegible] when he battles Morgan as the weight for the contest is 131 pounds, one pound above the notch for the junior lightweight class. Babe was [illegible] vinced for [illegible] his engagement with [illegible] Suggs that [illegible] make weight for featherweight division and [illegible] himself [illegible] to battle as a junior lightweight in the future.

Jack Conway

GEORGE WISWELL and Alex [illegible] are [illegible] to [illegible] in the monster boxing carnival to be staged by the Crosscup-Pishon Post [illegible] on June 28. It is expected that a record crowd will be on hand when Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, and [illegible]

[illegible] the original match.

It is seldom that a feature bout has two such fine supporting [illegible] as [illegible] the [illegible] affair. Sammy Fuller of the North End will tackle Carl Tremaine of Cleveland, while [illegible] of Dorchester will take on Al Corbett of Cleveland.

JACK SHARKEY is already in fine condition for his ten round mill with Bud Gorman of New York, [illegible] to be staged [illegible] the Suffolk [illegible] on next Wednesday night. Sharkey was originally slated to meet Charlie Weinert, but the [illegible] ran out of [illegible] and went to California. An attempt was [illegible] made to get Jack DeMave [illegible] New England [illegible] DeMave [illegible] Sharkey was [illegible].

"Will you let Sharkey fight Gorman?" Matchmaker [illegible] asked Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's [illegible].

"Sharkey will fight any heavyweight in the world," was the response.

The match was then closed. When Sharkey and Gorman [illegible] at the Arena last September [illegible] but Sharkey had other engagements.

In his last start, Gorman gave Carl Carter a boxing lesson over the ten-round route which caused a knockout defeat which [illegible] had previously suffered at the hands of [illegible] heavyweight. [illegible] Field [illegible] The winner of [illegible] will be signed [illegible] of the Sharkey [illegible]

LOUGHRAN DUE FOR TUSSLE WITH CHAMP

Philadelphia, June 18 (A P) —With a smashing victory safely stowed away over Georges Carpentier, French idol of the squared circle, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia favorite, today gazed with longing eyes toward the light heavyweight title held by Paul Berlenbach.

The champion has been invited by Philadelphia promoters to meet the winner of the Carpentier-Loughran [illegible] over the [illegible]. The [illegible] has been offered $ [illegible] to defend his title against the aggressive Philadelphian.

Carpentier, orchid man of the French boulevards, fought a courageous fight against Loughran, but a stirring rally in the getaway frame brought the laurels to the Quaker City puncher.

Speed Demon Causes Dispute

A pretty little scrap is on between the management of the Rockingham Motor Speedway at Salem, N. H., and the owners of the race course at Abilene, Texas. The object of their [illegible] is to obtain the services of Frank Lockhart, the youthful Californian who won the Indianapolis [illegible] classic Decoration Day.

Before Lockhart won his race at Indianapolis he had signed up to race at Abilene, Texas, in the race [illegible] to take place on [illegible] the same day [illegible] the [illegible] Motor Speedway [illegible]. After winning the race Lockhart promised that he would enter the race at Salem, evidently forgetting that he had signed for Texas.

Lockhart wants to drive at Rockingham, but seems to have no choice in the matter, as neither Abilene nor Rockingham are willing to relinquish their claim to his services, so it's up to the A. A. A., the august body which controls all automobile racing in this country, to settle the matter for the disputing parties.

TENNIS PRODIGY RESTS AFTER FOUR VICTORIES

Philadelphia, June 18 (A.P.).—Seventeen-year-old Donald Strachan, sensation of the Middle States tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, was idle today after four brilliant victories that carried him to the semi final round.

Only one singles match was scheduled today. This was between Wallace Johnson, chop stroke expert, and Sandy Wiener, both of this city, the winner to meet William T. Tilden, national champion, in one of the semi finals. Strachan, who represents the Germantown Academy, meets Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis Cup player, in the other semi final.

Fights Last Night

Philadelphia—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, light heavyweight, outpointed Georges Carpentier of France (10).

Yale Okun, New York heavyweight, scored technical knockout over Johnny Urban, Pittsburgh (6). Jack (Tiny) Dougherty, Philadelphia heavyweight, knocked out Harry Boughter, Philadelphia (3).

New York—Stanislaus Loayza, Chilean lightweight, won decision over Jack Bernstein, Yonkers (10). Lou Paluso, Salt Lake City, outpointed Joey Sangor, New York.

Madison, S. D.—King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight, knocked out Frankie Larrabee, Lincoln, Neb. (2).

Sioux City—Romer Sheridan, Sioux City, forced Howard Lambie, Aberdeen, to quit (6). Eddie Lewis, Minneapolis, won decision over Johnny Bains, Sioux City (6).

GOLF by Bill Grimes

There were about one hundred participants in the four-ball tournament at the Woodland Golf Club for the benefit of the Newton Hospital. Although some of the best four-ball teams in the district played, the best gross was 71, three teams being tie at those figures.

Although both Jack Lowe and Ray Van Arsdale will drop threes on the home holes at Woodland [illegible] of ten times, neither was able to equal par in the four-ball best ball Newton Hospital tournament and their [illegible] them [illegible] with the Crane-Whittemore and Bohr-Crosby teams.

Clarence Folensbee, the new member of the Woodland second team, is creating a stir in the Boston Four Ball League. He has been playing golf for a few years, but never got [illegible] to show his stuff [illegible]. Folensbee scored three points for his team against Wollaston.

Now that Folensbee has been given a chance and made the grade, it is up to Captain [illegible] of the Woodland second team to send Marcus [illegible] into action. Marcus has been playing great golf of late. He had two 70s the other day at Woodland and deserves a chance to play with one of the four-ball teams.

But for an unfortunate six on the third hole, Tommie Welch and Joe Norton, Jr., would have grabbed off the low gross at the Woodland Four Ball tournament. With the exception of this hole the pair played real high grade golf and teamed up cleverly.

Elmer Ward is coming back. He has been off his game all Spring, but his 77 at the Lexington open shows that he is about to start on another clean-up drive, similar to the one he staged last year.

Many regrets have been heard regarding the conflicting dates in the M. G. A. schedule. The Pittsfield Country Club three-day tournament is the same week as the Essex four-ball and the Jacques Cup Tournament at The Country Club conflicts with the two-day Rockport Country Club tournament.

Frank McGrath appears to be returning to his old-time form. He has been playing with the first team at Wollaston in the Four Ball League and has been performing nobly. Frank had a 76 at Woodland last week in a heavy rain storm. Jack Lowe, who played against McGrath, stated that the Wollaston boy could have had a 71 or 72 just as easily as he got his 76. Jack Lowe knows a golfer when he sees one and he always calls a spade a spade.

William H. Nolan, of the Nolan's Caddie Unit, leaves this week for the Lake Tarleton Country Club at Pike, N. H. Nolan is taking about twenty well schooled caddies with him. He has the best trained caddies in New England.

There is a great demand for invitations for the Oakley Country Club tournament. Seldom do the boys get an opportunity to play the Mt. Auburn course, which, although there appears to be too many blind tee shots, is a great lay out.

Many a bag of golf clubs will be hurried from Marlboro to Brockton this coming week. The Brockton and Marlboro Country clubs are holding handicap medal play tournaments on Friday and Saturday.

Fred Corcoran, who was assisting Donald Ross at Pinehurst a year ago, but who is now in the shoe business, has joined Albemarle. Freddie is a sweet golfer and if he gets an opportunity to play in open tournaments will be a constant winner.

MITCHELL FAR AHEAD OF HAGEN IN GOLFING DUEL

ABE GETS LONG LEAD OVER FOE

American Expert Four Down at End of Thirty-six Holes in International Match

By CHARLES A. SMITH
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

London, June 18.—Abe Mitchell was 4 up on Walter Hagen at the end of the first 36 holes of their 72 hole match this afternoon.

Hagen was 3 down when play started this afternoon but was unable to head Mitchell who gained another hole during the afternoon play.

The remaining 36 holes will be played tomorrow over the St. George's Hill course.

The British professional ace was three up on Hagen at the end of the first eighteen. The outward cards follow:

Hagen	5-4-4-4-4-4-3-5-3—38
Mitchell	5-4-4-4-4-5-4-3-4—37

The cards on the homeward nine follow:

Hagen	4-5-3-4-5-4-5-4-5—39
Mitchell	4-5-3-4-4-4-4-3-5—36

Both Hagen and Mitchell made an indifferent start. They halved the first five holes, Mitchell missing a fine chance of a win when he took three putts on the short fifth after Hagen had been bunkered. Hagen won the sixth when Mitchell hooked his drive into the rough. Mitchell won the long seventh but Hagen squared the match before the end of the ninth.

The turn in the morning round found both men playing equal golf but Hagen found bunkers on the 14th, 16th and 17th and ended the morning round three down.

YALE ATHLETE WINS HIGH JUNIOR CLASS HONORS

New Haven, Ct., June 18 (A.P.).—Philip Waite Bunnell of Scranton, Pa., captain-elect of the Yale University football and swimming teams, has won the highest junior honor at Yale University, the Francis Gordon Brown Scholarship. He was chosen by unanimous vote of the committee of award.

The holder of this scholarship is selected upon recommendation of the members of the class as the man who most closely approaches the standard of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Francis Gordon Brown, Yale 1901.

Officials announced yesterday that all seats on the thirty-[illegible] train had been sold and predicted the crowd at the races will be the largest in history.

HAGENLACHER LEADS IN BALKLINE TITLE MATCH

Los Angeles, June 18 (A.P.).—Erich Hagenlacher, world's 18.2 balkline billiard champion, led Welker Cochrane, title contender, 800 to 382 at the start of the third 400 block of their 2,400 exhibition match which opened here yesterday. The champion completed the first block in seven innings and the second in four.

South Boston and [illegible] [illegible] meeting the league leading Fore River club at Russell Field, North Cambridge.

Eddie Dondero

Since Joe Kenney [illegible] the Dorchester [illegible] has [illegible] somewhat formidable. The team as a unit was not hitting as it should, so Pilot Joe injected the proper batting and speed into the ranks.

Dominic Mulrenan, who once wore a Chicago White Sox uniform, will [illegible] the outfit into the first division now that his mates have commenced to ride the agate to every corner of the pasture.

Leahy has not done much gossiping over his "[illegible]" but they too will move up in the league standings as soon as they receive the right kind of pitching. Young Herberts and Ed Whalen are entitled to much credit for every pastime the team won this season.

Herberts is [illegible] dependable flinger while Whalen, the catcher, has knocked in more runs through his effective batting than any other player in the circuit.

Chick Paterson, the Fore River pilot, has [illegible], upon the good right arm of Robert [illegible], which has yet to function correctly. Patrons have responded generously to the Quincy entrant, as every home game played thus far has been well patronized.

On tomorrow afternoon the Lynn General Electric outfit meets Malden on the former's home grounds. Fore River's athletes will do their baseballing with [illegible] at Quincy.

GOLFERS FAVOR CHANGE IN SCORING

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible] speaking of a [illegible] the present system [illegible] the annual meeting of the Boston Four Ball League [illegible] be a change made in [illegible] system of scoring.

Bill Grimes

The present system [illegible] [illegible] league. [illegible] every week [illegible] up large scores which results in a runaway race for these teams every year.

Under the present system of scoring the total points scored by a team determines its standing in the league. It is now possible for a team to score twelve points by each pair [illegible] three points. With the exception of Brae Burn and The Country Club there is no team in the Boston Four Ball League with sufficient strength to make a clean [illegible].

A fairer way to score four-ball matches would be the one used in professional hockey, two points for a win and one for a tie. The Nassau scoring could remain as [illegible] the points [illegible] the winning [illegible] two points and if the teams split the points evenly award each [illegible] one point.

With the above mentioned system it would be impossible for any team to jump out in front in leaps and bounds as The Country Club and Brae Burn have done in the past. Every team would feel that it had a chance and the interest in the matches would be much greater.

Under the present system a team becomes discouraged and the players refuse to give up an afternoon for a [illegible] four ball match when they know that it is impossible for them to win a sufficient number of points to put them [illegible] in the race.

DOUBLE BILL FOR REVERE BIKE FANS

A double-header of feature bike racing has been arranged for the cycle loving public at the Revere Beach oval Saturday night. The two senior races are a five-[illegible] 35-mile paced contest and a three-team tandem affair of three one-mile heats.

The entrants [illegible] Chapman, Larry Gaffney, Charles Ver[illegible], Frankie Keenan and Charley [illegible] holding the [illegible]. Verkes' great racing in the last two meets at [illegible] gives him the edge with the fans. The Belgian has [illegible] into an avalanche of [illegible] and proposes to continue his good work in Saturday's contest.

His opponents [illegible] give him plenty of trouble before the final gun is fired. Keenan and Chapman in particular are anxious to [illegible] and they will push their pedals faster than ever to offset Ver[illegible] rushes on the week end.

Manager Butler has teamed up three pair of [illegible] for the tandem race. They are Braskie-Meyers, Martin Jarvis and McKenzie-[illegible]. They will race three one-mile heats, points deciding the winner.

4 GOOD EVENTS AT STURBRIDGE

By GUS DALY.

Sturbridge, Mass., June 18.—Four good events, two for trotters and the same number for pacers, are carded for this afternoon at the Sturbridge fair grounds, where the Bay State Circuit races are holding forth.

There was an immense crowd in attendance at the opening day of the season and the light harness devotees were treated to some excellent sport.

Tipple Volo won the event for three-year-old trotters and showed her heels to a class [illegible] of youngsters.

Fred Hide won the 2.20 trot with Golden Worthy, a handsome [illegible] of Guy Axeworthy.

AY GOULD WILL DESERT RACQUETS FOR POLO

BUDGET PAYS THE VACATION BILLS

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK No. 79

By MARTHA LEE

WE ALL realize that vacations are an investment in Vim, Vigor and Vitality, but it's not always easy to find the necessary money to invest, [illegible] if we've been spending by average hit-or-miss methods.

If you're an early vacationer of course it's too late for budget to do much for you this season, but if you're planning for a Fall trip turn over the family finances to budget NOW and he'll pay the bills for you in the Fall.

Budget [illegible] vide your fam[illegible] allotments, one of which is called "personal." This fund gets [illegible] per cent. of the total [illegible] each week, and out of [illegible] other things, comes the vacation money. And a vacation needn't be a wildly expensive thing, you know.

Whichever way your tastes run, don't forget that the Boston Evening American maintains an excellent Hotel and Travel Bureau that will gladly help you find just the spot that will suit you best. Just write them at [illegible] Winthrop square, and they will gladly suggest several places on which you can depend.

One budgeter asks if the weekly food allotment should be used for the vacation fund. Surely. Also whatever percentage of operating and business carfares will be saved while you are vacationing. Vacations are not always as expensive as they look at first glance when we stop to consider the many household expenses that leave off where the vacation begins.

Make Budget dig down and produce some kind of a vacation for you—whether a day, a week or a month. He'll have lots less to pay for doctor's bills next Winter if you pep up this Summer.

Send for your budget form today. And if you'll give full details of the family finances, I'll make an individual budget cut to fit your own requirements.

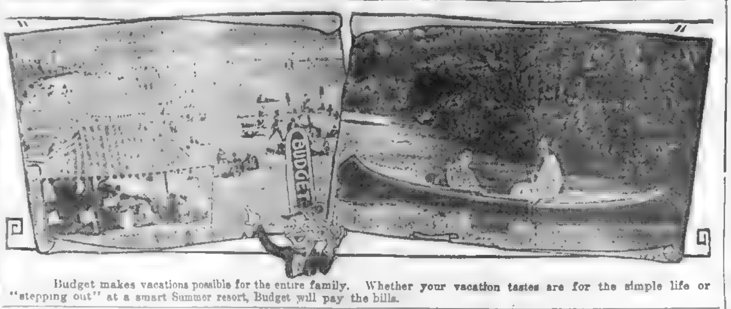
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. M. J. O. C. asks how she can get along on $35 a week. Must pay $50 rent, as she likes the place. Four in family, including two babies. Food $10, milk $4.29 weekly, gas $4, electricity $3, telephone $3.25, co-operative bank $10 a month, husband's allowance $5 a week, including lunches and carfare. Pays $25 twice a year for insurance. Burns six tons of coal and always has to draw from bank for coal, insurance and clothing.



Budget makes vacations possible for the entire family. Whether your vacation tastes are for the simple life or "stepping out" at a smart Summer resort, Budget will pay the bills.

I am afraid you will have to continue this last habit, as most of your present expenses exceed the standard budget for $35. This ordinarily would give you shelter, $7.56, including business carfares; savings $4, including insurance and co-operative bank payments; food, $10.50; clothing, $4.50; operating, $4.50, and personal, $4. At present you are paying $11.49 weekly for rent without including your husband's business carfares, which I assume are $1.20. This makes a total of $12.69, which is $5.19 more under shelter than the $35 budget allows.

A standard budget food allowance is $10.50, whereas you are paying $14.20 (including milk) without your husband's lunches, which let us say amount to $2.10 weekly. This means you are paying a total of $16.30 for food or $5.80 over the standard allowance.

The standard budget allows you $4.50 for clothing and $4.50 for operating, including coal, gas, electricity and telephone. You are at present paying an average of $1.55 weekly on the annual coal bill, 92 cents weekly for gas, 42 cents for electricity and 75 cents for telephone, making $3.98. As Budget allows you $4.50, this gives you a balance of 52 cents.

At present you are $7.17 over the standard $35 budget. Even if you took the entire $4.50 of your clothing allotment to make up this deficit, you would still be $2.67 short.

Mrs. E. S. wishes to live within $45 a week. Five children in family from 14 to 4. Pays $45 a month rent, including garage. Pays $5.60 a month insurance for husband and 60 cents weekly for children; laundry 60 cents weekly, carfare, 10 cents a day; husband's business takes him away every other day, each trip costing about $1.60 for food and carfare. She has been allowing $15 for food, kitchen supplies and milk.

First, let's consider a standard budget of $45 weekly for seven in the family. This would give you ordinarily savings $4, shelter $10, food $15 including milk, clothing $6, operating $5 including heat, gas, electricity and laundry, and $5 for personal. Your rent is now amounting to practically $10 a week without your husband's business carfares, which means you are $1.20 short on this allotment. Insurance seems to be your only form of savings, and amounts to $1.94 weekly. Since budget allows you $4, you have $2.06 left over here with which you can make up your rent deficit, leaving 80 cents still to the good.

Fifteen dollars for food for seven is little enough. Uncle Sam himself says that 50 cents a day per person should really be allowed, and if we were taking his figures this would amount to $24.50 a week for eats, so I figure that you are doing very well indeed to keep within $15. This $15 should, however, cover your husband's meals away from home. Budget allows you $6 for clothing and $5 for operating, out of which comes the 60 cents weekly for laundry and all expenses for coal, gas, electricity and telephone.

OLD PHOTOGRAPHS

IS THERE anything more pathetic, more touching, more full of past joy or sorrow than old photographs?

When I was younger and less busy I was an ardent photographer. Not a scientific one; I had a quite simple unperfected kodak, but for all that I made many charming snapshots, especially of my children.

I had six children, and my last little boy, who died during the war, was born twenty years after his elder brother—so they spanned almost a generation.

I gathered all the pictures of my children in neat little albums—Oh, I have dozens of them!—bound in Rumanian embroideries. Nothing is more precious to me than these beautiful books, bits of my children's very life.

And, fully grown as they are, how my children enjoy looking at these presentments of themselves—color and sunshine from out of the past!

Oh, Mama, did I really look like that?"

"Can that fat, curly-mopped dumpling be me?"

"Yes, yes—I do remember that dress, how proud I was of it—and that pony—Tommy—how he loved sugar—and good old Mike the spaniel—do you remember, Mummy, how he used to try to catch frogs?"

Whole series of half-forgotten pictures, souvenirs of happy young days, rise in their minds, to be lived again with smiles and tears.

As for me, myself—Ah, those dear albums that I finger lovingly: Carol in his first uniform; Carol with the toy cannon old Uncle gave him; Carol's first parade on the fat cream-colored pony; Carol building a hut; Carol on the seashore catching crabs; Carol's first outing after typhoid; Carol—Carol—Carol! So many hopes, so much care, so much happiness, so much love—and now!

I put away Carol's book and pick up little Mircea's—the four-year-old who died, my baby—a much smaller book: Mircea chasing a butterfly; Mircea dragging his little wooden cart carefully filled with pebbles; Mircea kissing his sister's doll; Mircea dressed up as an American Indian, battle-ax in hand; Mircea . . .

And now of the three boys there is only Nicky left.

Nicky is a breezy, happy joy, but the other two . . .

Ah, these lovable, pathetic little albums, so full of joy and of grief!

Who of us has not our old photographs that we look at with tear-drowned eyes: Mama with her bustle, looking up into Papa's face; dear Granny in her crinoline; Nurse in her best dress and bonnet; the picture of our new house with the beautiful, strong paling round the kitchen-garden; that rosebush which was in full flower when Molly married; the old pony chaise now replaced by the Ford!

Old memories, dear, precious memories. It swells our hearts and dims our eyes to recall them. Yet it is good to feel, even though we suffer, as all who feel deeply must suffer!

"Boston to Broadway," as Revealed by George M. Cohan Himself

it out and give you a start."

I didn't quite understand what he was getting at, but the thought struck me that he was trying to take advantage of my lack of business ability.

"This fellow knows in his heart that he's just heard four or five of the greatest songs ever written in any part of the world," I thought to myself. In a flash I was absolutely on to the fact that he was afraid I would demand big advance royalties, and so was using these methods to discourage and browbeat me into accepting whatever he cared to offer.

"What about the contract?" I inquired. He smiled at this. His work was great all right, but I was eyeing him very closely.

"We'll talk about that contract later on, son, if you don't mind. I'm pretty busy right now and I have [illegible] an hour. Just leave your 'script on the piano over there and stroll in the latter part of next week, and I'll let you know definitely whether we can do anything about it or not."

I was on the verge of laughing down such an outrageous arrangement, when it suddenly occurred to me that, never having had a song published, it would at least be a step forward to a real hearing, so took the wild chance of leaving my manuscript. I merely said:

George Patronized

"All right, Mr. Witmark, whatever you say." On the way out, the old gentleman stopped me to shake hands again.

"Issy tells me you're trying to become a song writer," he chuckled. What did he mean "trying to become a song writer?" How dared he patronize me in such a manner?

"Oh, yes," I answered, as indifferently as I could. "Anything to keep the pot boiling." He walked with me to the front door.

"Remember me to your father," he said as I started down the steps.

"I sure will, yes, sir," and I headed for Broadway.

"They're a gang of pirates and highwaymen in that place," I said to myself as I hurried along. I called the Witmarks everything villainous I could lay my tongue to.

The fact that I'd actually "landed a song" finally loomed up before me. I was at last going to see my name as author and composer printed on the title page of a musical composition which would more than likely sell millions of copies. I instantly calmed down at the thought, and started whistling the refrain of "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?" and kept at it all the way to Union square. When I arrived there I stopped to mingle with a group of song writers to whom I began singing the praises of M. Witmark & Sons, and followed it up with a verse and chorus of the "Nellie" song.

When I had finished my rendition of this sad but beautiful ballad, a parody writer who was known as "McCann, the Song Factory," and who was a great favorite with the variety actors on account of his exceptional wit and ready remarks, said to me:

"Did you sell that song to the Witmarks?"

"Sure. They grabbed it the minute I pulled it on them."

"Put it there, kid," and he grabbed my hand. "You're the best business man I ever met."

"What do you mean by that?" I asked.

The gang started backing away from the curb, to get more laughing space.

"Have you ever heard the song yourself?" went on McCann.

"Ever heard it? Certainly. Didn't I just tell you that I wrote it?"

"I know you wrote it, but have you ever heard it?"

"Certainly, I've heard it. Didn't I just sing it?"

"I know you sang it, but I'm asking you again, have you ever heard it?" he insisted.

Family Enthused

By this time the rest of the crowd that had moved away were fairly convulsed, falling over one another trying to see who could laugh the loudest. It took me till then to realize that I was being "kidded" by McCann.

Another wild outburst sent me on my way to the boarding house, where I imparted the news to my family that the Witmarks were moving heaven and earth in their efforts to get my name to a long-term contract. I had all the publishers in town fighting for my future compositions and had just closed a big deal for "Why Did Nellie Leave Her Home?"

"Hurray for you, son!" shouted Dad.

Josie threw her arms about my neck and kissed me.

Mother wept with joy.

"I told you I'd fold this town up and put it in my pocket, didn't I?" Well, you just watch me from now on."

During the two or three weeks that followed, I devoted most of my spare time to "buttonholing" acquaintances, edging my way into groups, and annoying people generally by advertising the fact, with words and music, that "Nellie had left her home." I carried the royalty contract, which Witmark had given me, in my coat pocket, and proudly displayed it every chance I got.

I sang the song at least thirty times a day. No one escaped me. Acrobats, magicians, jugglers, monologists, wire workers, in fact all of Union square, listened most patiently as I moved about here and there, rendering the brilliant ballad to them all.

When the advance professional copies of the song came out, much to my astonishment and chagrin, I discovered that an entirely new set of lyrics had been written to fit my melody. The only thing left of the original set of words was the title line. My indignation knew no bounds.

"They can't do this to me," I declared to myself over and over again as I read and reread the new version of my brain child. "I'll sue them, that's what I'll do. I'll put them in jail for this."

And then the terrible, humiliating thought struck me.

"Here I've been singing the song as I wrote it for weeks and weeks to everybody I know. Now they'll hear this distortion and naturally guess that the whole thing has been revised. I'll be laughed at for allowing my name to be signed to a lyric that some one else has written." My blood boiled with anger. How dared they do such a thing without first consulting me? "They've ruined my beautiful song," I thought.

With fire in my eyes and murder in my heart, I started to tear up Fourteenth street on a dead run for the Witmark offices.

Caring for the Eyes

By Maria Jeritza,

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

"MY dear, what have you done to yourself? You look at least ten years younger than you did six weeks ago."

"I never knew you to look so well!"

"Everything you wear is so becoming!"

These and similar exclamations greet an [illegible] of mine these days, wherever she goes. It is true that her [illegible] one hundred [illegible]

She told [illegible] the other day.

"I decided to take [illegible] of my eyes." [illegible] I owe [illegible] means [illegible]

"I realized I was [illegible] haggard [illegible] were growing [illegible] about my eyes and [illegible] of all, I found [illegible] strain every day [illegible] I decided that as they are the only eyes I possess, I owe them a fair deal."

My friend gave up working under harsh, artificial light. She found a means of reading and studying by clear, bright daylight.

She faithfully allowed herself eight hours of sleep each night in a dark room. She had herself fitted to rest glasses. These she uses when her eyes feel tired. They are carefully suited to her own special need, but their effect seem to be that of slightly magnifying print, sewing or other fine work.

She washes her eyes each night with warm water and an eye-glass. She rests them taking long walks [illegible] far horizons and [illegible] to refresh the eyes.

[illegible] pats a good skinfood [illegible] and forehead each [illegible] are strained [illegible]

[illegible] to make your own skin [illegible] I found so helpful:

[illegible] spermaceti [illegible] lanolin, two ounces [illegible] oil, four ounces [illegible] oil, two ounces, benzoin [illegible] three drops, and orange flower water, two drops.

Melt the first five ingredients together over a very low fire. Beat the mixture until it is nearly cold. Add the benzoin little by little and last of all, when the cream is quite cold, stir in the orange flower water.

Even though you are very young your face will look old and worn if you suffer from eye strain. You can't do better, from the point of view of health and beauty, than to begin today to give your eyes intelligent care and consideration.

Long, thick eyelashes are a protection from dust and glare. Rubbing one per cent. of yellow oxide of mercury into your lashes and brows will tend to encourage their growth.

CHAPTER XXI.

July 27th.

THE blow has fallen again, and this time almost at our very door. That it is not murder is not due to any lack of intention, but to weakness in execution. I have spent a large portion of the day in urging Edith and Jane to go back to town, but without result.

"Not unless you go," Jane said firmly, and Edith and I exchanged glances.

As a matter of fact, last night's events have left me in a more precarious position than before, and I feel that any move on my part would only precipitate matters. Greenough has given out a statement to the reporters that an early arrest may be expected, and I do not for the life of me understand why he has not pounced already.

I imagine the only thing that has saved me, so far, has been the single fact that Peter Geiss knows I was on the sloop the night and hour when Halliday was attacked. That puzzles him. . . .

To record last night's strange affair in sequence:

I could not sleep, a condition which is growing chronic with me lately, and at or about midnight I went downstairs and outside. The night was extremely dark; I paced back and forward along the drive, keeping at first close to the Lodge, but gradually extending my steps as I grew accustomed to the darkness.

After twenty minutes or so of this, and at the extreme of my swing toward the other house, I heard some sort of movements in that direction, and stopped to listen. It was a cautious disturbance of the shrubbery, and I swung in among the trees and stood listening. It was not repeated, however, and I turned to go back.

I had, however, lost my way, and for some brief time I floundered about. At last I found the sundial, by striking against it, and thus locating myself, turned about and struck back toward the Lodge.

I had not gone ten feet before I heard the bell ringing.

(Note. A large bell on the kitchen porch of the main house and used in times before the telephone was installed, to summon the gardener. It is rung by pulling a rope attached to it.)

Professor Grilled

It rang sharply twice and then abruptly stopped, and the sudden silence seemed somehow ominous, like the stillness after a shriek.

There were no lights in the main house, anod no further sounds came from it. I daresay at such times one does not think, one acts automatically. Someone has said, "Within the spinal cord. Not the brain." I do not recall thinking at all, but I do recall trying to feel my way through the trees, and that I ran into one and was partially stunned for an instant.

The house was still completely dark and silent. I felt my way with more caution, skirted the shrubbery, and at last found the railing leading up the steps to the kitchen. Here I was on safer gruond, and I crossed the small porch to the door with increased confidence, only to stumble over something and almost fall. I knew at once what it was, and I felt suddenly ill, although my brain was as active as ever in my life. "In the pit of his stomach man is always a coward." But I found some matches in my dressing-gown pocket, and striking one bent over a figure lying prone at my feet. It was young Gordon, unconscious and bleeding from a blow on the head and securely tied with a rope. I was still stooping over him, fumbling for another match, when a flashlight shone in my face, fairly blinding me. It played on me for a moment, and then on the boy stretched on the floor and now slightly moving.

"What's happened?" said a voice from behind it, and with relief I recognized it as the doctor's.

"He's hurt," I said, rising dizzily. "Struck on the head, I think."

"Open the door there and turn on the lights. I'll carry him in."

I did as he told me, being still somewhat unsteady, and as he laid the boy on the floor and straightened I was aware that his eyes, as they rested on me, were hostile and suspicious.

Immediately, however, he went to work on the boy, examining him first and then removing the rope.

"He's only stunned," he said, and leaving him lying as he was, began to move about the room. Just inside the door was the poker from the kitchen range, and this, with the rope, he laid aside carefully. Then he went outside, and with his flash examined the bell.

"Just where were you, Porter, when this happened?" he asked.

"In the grounds, by the sundial. I couldn't sleep. When I heard the bell I came on a run."

"It was the boy who pulled the bell?"

"I haven't an idea."

He went back to his patient, and examined the wound in the scalp more carefully. After that he dressed it, the boy by that time moving about and groaning, but still only partially conscious. I gave such help as I could, getting water and so on, and when the dressing was done the doctor disappeared and returned with a cushion. Keeping the boy supine, he slipped it under his head. Then he straightened.

"He Hid Me"

"You'd better notify the old man," he said. "I'll stay here, if you don't mind."

And from the look he gave me, I gathered that he had no intention of leaving me with the boy.

I made my way upstairs to the room over the den, and knocked for some time before I was heard. Then Mr. Bethel called out, startled, and I asked if I could come in. I heard him making heavy work of getting out of bed, and finally he shot the bolt and opening the door an inch or two glared out at me.

"What the devil's the matter?"

"Nothing serious," I said. "There's been a little trouble downstairs, and we thought you'd better be told."

"A fire!"

"Not a fire," I reassured him, and gave him a brief account of what had occurred.

He was not particularly gracious; demanded to know what the boy was doing outside at that hour, and seemed to feel that, with a doctor already in the house, his responsibility was ended. As there was actually nothing he could do, I helped him back to his bed and left him sitting on the side, an unpleasant but helpless figure.

As I went out he asked me to bring him a cup of hot water!

The boy was conscious when I went back to the kitchen, staring around him, and particularly concentrating on the doctor and myself. He put his hand to his head and felt the bandage.

"Where'd I get that?" he asked thickly.

After a time he tried to get up, and the doctor put him into a chair.

"Now, Gordon," he said, "what happened to you? Try and think."

"He hit me," he said finally. "The dirty devil!"

"Who hit you?"

But he was still dazed for coherent thought. He improved rapidly after that, however, although he complained of severe headache. He became garrulous, too, as happens after concussion, but out of his maunderings we were able to secure a fairly connected story.

He had been unable to sleep, because of certain noises in his room. He glanced at me. "You were right, old-dear," he said elegantly, "when you said the place has an unpleasant reputation. I'll tell the world it's unpleasant."

He had got up and gone down to the kitchen for something to eat. After that, reluctant to go up to his room again, he had wandered out onto the kitchen steps and sat there. It was then that he heard someone stealthily approaching the house.

He listened, and finally he heard a window of the old gun room next to the laundry being raised. He stared that way, and insists he saw a dark figure there. The next moment it was gone, and he was certain there was someone in the house.

He had, apparently, turned to enter the house and head off the intruder, but was struck down in the doorway. On the matter of ringing the bell, he was rather vague at first, not remembering that he had done so, but later saying he had had his hand on the rope, when the blow came.

Hayward listened to this intently. Then he turned to me.

"And you were where, Porter?"

"By the sun-dial. On the other side of it. I had started toward home."

Professor Grilled

"Do you mean to say that, after that bell rang, this man Gordon speaks of had time to tie him and escape, before you got here?"

"I've told you the facts. It isn't a simple matter to get here from the sun-dial, in the dark."

I remembered the hot water then, and finding some in the tea-kettle carried it up to Mr. Bethel. He showed me more civility this time, inquired after the boy, and even offered his pocket flask, lying on his bedside table. There was a revolver beside it, and he saw me glance at it and smiled grimly.

"What with the sounds inside your house, and the things that are happening outside, I think it best to be prepared for anything."

So, in spite of young Gordon he, too, has been hearing things. . . .

In spite of the doctor's attitude and my own fears, I cannot see today that a dispassionate examination of the evidence would really involve me.

Gordon saw a man enter the gun room window, and was attacked from the kitchen by that man. It must be perfectly evident to Greenough, on hearing the doctor's story, that had I for any reason desired to make some nefarious entrance into the house, I need not have resorted to a window. I have keys to every door, and can produce them.

Thomas, however, who seems to have his own methods of acquiring information, today tells a fact which, in my ignorance of such matters, I had not noticed last night. He states that the doctor reports the boy as having been tied in the same manner as poor Carroway, in two half hitches at the ankle.

The rope, it appears, was not brought for the purpose, but had been left lying on the top of Annie Cochran's laundry basket in the kitchen, when she went home last night.

Later! Greenough and Doctor Hayward have driven past, on their way to the main house. I have telephoned to Halliday, and he is on his way here. I may need him.

baby-eyes at him, Mary Ann Locke!"

"Not me!" fibbed Merry, and escaped to the kitchen.

Moms and Helen were doing the dishes. "I'm going to take Jinny to the circus—if it's all right with you," Merry began timidly.

"Tonight?" Moms asked sharply, and Merry nodded.

"Well, I just guess you aren't going to any circus tonight!" Moms went on, "coming home at 11 or 12 o'clock, a couple of girls like you! You'll be having some pickpocket following you and knocking you both senseless! Indeed, you're not going alone to any circus tonight!"

"I think they'd be safe enough, Sadie," Dad's amiable voice floated in.

Merry Ashamed

"Oh, you! You think they'd be safe, anywhere!" Moms retorted. "You'd let them cross the ocean on a raft, if they felt like it! I hate to think what would become of them if you had to bring them up! Now, they're NOT going to the circus tonight, so that's that!"

"I'd take them myself if I didn't have such a blinding headache," Dad returned in his mild way.

Just as Merry was going out of the kitchen, Moms suddenly changed her mind.

"You can go if Derrick Jones goes with you!" she snapped shortly.

Moms liked Derrick. She thought he was such a nice sensible boy. She was always glad when he came over to see Merry, and she would leave them alone for hours together.

Merry often giggled quietly to herself when she though of what Moms would say if she ever found out that Derrick kissed her and made love to her every chance he got. Last night, in the shadows of the hammock couch, he had suggested that they run away to Rhode Island and get married.

"What do you want to go to a circus for? Second childhood?" Derrick asked, when Merry telephoned him. But he added that he was glad to go along. Five minutes later his little car was parked near the circus tent.

Derrick in the close-pressed crowd, was trying to catch one of Merry's hot little hands. But she wouldn't let him. She finally locked them together to keep him from touching her.

"What's the matter with you tonight?" he asked her in a voice so low that Jinny couldn't hear what he said.

Merry only shook her head in answer.

How could she tell him that she was ashamed because she had let him kiss her so many times the last few months, without meaning it?

How could she confess to him that since noon today she had seemed very cheap and common to herself because she had let him do it? And how, above all, could she admit to him that nothing more than the way a Man in Gray had looked at her, had made her feel so common and so cheap? She just couldn't do it!

There were things about yourself that you just never could explain to anybody. And this was one of them!

Sees the Man

"Pink lemonade, Derrick!" she cried as they went along. "We've got to have some! No one ever goes to a circus without drinking pink lemonade. And an ice cream cone—"

She never finished what she had started to say. For suddenly, in the thick of the crowd ahead of her, she caught a flash of grave dark eyes.

"The Man in Gray!" she said to herself with a little gasp. But when she looked for him a second time she couldn't find him.

"I must have made a mistake," she told herself at last. "I've been thinking about him so much the last week that now I've begun to imagine I'm seeing him, every place I go!" She frowned, out of patience with her silly self.

Jinny and Derrick enjoyed the show but for Merry [illegible] the evening was over. [illegible] glimpses of dark eyes [illegible] thing out of her mind but the Man in Gray.

She sat thinking about him, puzzling her head over him, while Jinny and Derrick laughed wildly.

Their seats were high up toward the top of the tent [illegible]. The [illegible] was close and hot, and Merry began to wish she had not come.

She sat between her two companions, and every now and then Derrick would absently reach for her hand.

"That's getting to be quite a habit with him!" she thought, and she whispered fiercely, "don't do that again."

Derrick only grinned.

Then, presently, she became aware of someone staring at her.

From the corner of her eye she could see that there was a man sitting beside Jinny. He was [illegible] forward on his seat, looking [illegible] at her.

The persistent gaze made her uncomfortable. Some woman instinct told her that it was the Man in Gray.

Hardly knowing what she was doing, she turned her head very slowly and looked at him.

She was right! It was the Man in Gray—the man with the grave dark eyes! He was looking at her with an intensity that made her feel as if he had touched her.

She made a great effort and turned her eyes away. But his face stayed in her mind. She could see every line, every curve of it, while she pretended to watch the show.

It was an extraordinarily good-looking face. Lean and well shaped with a straight nose, a firm chin deeply cleft, and well-cut mouth.

Studies the Man

The eyes were unforgettable. Dark and serious, they had seemed to look Merry through and through. She wanted to turn in her seat and look at them again. She wanted to—and she was afraid to.

She knew she had never been stirred like this in her life before, and she didn't know why.

"I have never even spoken to the man!" she argued with herself. "How can I feel like this about him when I don't even know him?"

Merry couldn't get the man out of her mind even when the show was over. On the way out she lost [illegible] and Derrick and as she [illegible] along absent-minded[illegible] over a [illegible] the ground and went sprawling. [illegible] herself [illegible] said in her ear: "Let me help you. Are you hurt?" It was the Man in Gray.

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

BENEATH the picture with its fantastic and awkwardly non-committal paragraph was a brief title: "Arlette Valleau Visits Diane Petruzzi."

I was studying the picture so intently that I did not hear Jim until he was standing directly in front of me. Then in return for his morning greeting I looked up and blinked as I said:

"Hello. I had no idea you were up yet. I'll finish breakfast at once."

"You'd better. I'm starved," Jim said grouchily. "Why can't you have everything ready on time?"

"Why can't you let me know what time you call 'on time'?" I asked testily. "I'm not a—butler, you know."

Jim yawned and paid no attention to my attempt to inform him in subtle fashion that I'm not paid to wait on him.

"Beastly day, isn't it?" he said.

Then he pounced on the Sunday section I had just laid down. His brows knit and he growled testily.

"[illegible]"

"A picture of your friend, Arlette," I said [illegible].

Jim did not heed my sarcasm. He was so intent on studying the picture that he ignored me. And he growled one or two sentences to himself of which this much was audible.

". . . Altogether too soon . . . publicity hounds . . . Why can't they wait . . . I suppose Perry . . ."

He looked up and caught my eyes as they were fixed on him with an intensity I did not realize until he said testily:

"For the love of Mike, don't look so worried. I'm interested in the Valleau child's voice as I should think you'd know by this time. That little filer I had in the show business when you got Hawley to make me his general manager put me in touch with a lot of folks who know the game. This Diane Petruzzi is the best teacher going. Her price is twenty an hour. She gave Arlette a free audition at my say-so. But I didn't know things were going so fast—"

"Why?" I asked.

"Why—what?" Jim countered testily.

"Why do you get Arlette Valleau auditions without telling me?" I burst out, on the verge of tears.

"Anne," Jim cried in a tone which rang with honest astonishment. "I've never thought you could think of that child—this way. It never entered my head you could—"

He sat down and took his head in his hands and the voice which came from his bent form was dejected and almost sick with despair as he said:

"To think that you can be jealous again, and of that—baby."

I fell on my knees at Jim's side and protested eagerly:

"I'm not jealous. But you shut me out so. And I love you. I hate to share you with any one else. I hate to have you doing things I don't know about. I'm always being told by nice, catty friends—"

"Do I care when friends tell me things about you?" Jim protested. "Am I ever jealous—or suspicious—except when there's someone who really cares for you like Ralph Lacy—and I get to measuring myself by him and not feeling that I measure up any too well?"

"Don't," I protested. "You're the only man in the world for me. You ought to know it. I suffer so when I think another woman—prettier, lovelier—is beginning to interest you—that you're tiring of me perhaps—"

Jim's arms went around me. He held me close for a moment. Then he pushed me away and said in a curt, cold voice.

"Please go ahead with breakfast. I'm starved. You don't understand me. I'm not sure I ought to explain. Perhaps a woman like you has to suffer out of her folly."

That was all he would say. And as I went out to prepare the meal I knew I could not eat, my heart was dark with premonition and fear.

"Isn't breakfast going to be ready [illegible]?" Jim demanded, appearing suddenly in the kitchen doorway and standing there accusingly.

"I'm trying to make it particularly," I said, in a voice that probably indicated how much like a martyr I felt.

"Well, for the love of Mike, cut out the garnishes and hurry. I'm starved," Jim growled.

"If you're in such a hurry, why don't you offer to help?" I asked testily.

"You always tell me I'm in the way," Jim said.

"I do not. That's just an excuse"—I began, but I stopped myself abruptly as a suspicious smell greeted my nose.

I sniffed instinctively and then I fairly hurled myself upon the oven, where I was baking a batch of biscuits. When I opened the door a cloud of smoke greeted me. The biscuits were scorching so fast that they became a hideous dark brown instead of a soft tan before I could turn off the oven and pull out the pan.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

MEDICAL statistics show that there are more than ten thousand people in the United States suffering from amnesia. This is a disease which makes you forget who you are and how you got there.

ONE fellow had it so bad that he tried for three days to get himself on the phone.

HE finally gave up trying because he figured he must be out.

A CHELSEA man went home the other night and asked his wife if her husband was in.

AMNESIA is a terrible disease, but it comes in handy around the first of the month.

IT'S wonderful to be able to have your mind go blank in the butcher shop.

AND no man would want to regain his senses until the bill was paid.

THEN he could go across the street and have lapse of memory in the grocery store.

OF course the proprietor could have lapse of memory too and forget to send you any more groceries.

THE jails are full of men who forget who they are and sign other people's names on checks.

THERE is nothing in a name as long as you don't go around town putting it on drafts.

AMNESIA is liable to attack you anywhere. One fellow contracted it at the altar the other day and the minister had to introduce him to the bride.

HE couldn't remember why he was in church. He thought he had come there to say his prayers.

HE had to hold on to his forehead to keep his mind from wandering.

HIS memory was a total loss. He could have sold his scalp for blank books.

HE didn't know who he was and he couldn't find it in the city directory.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A SHIFT OF RESPONSIBILITY

By Helen St. Bernard

ELEANOR GRAY stood at the window and her eyes swept the broad expanse of green lawn of "Grayhurst." From the rear of the house came the sound of voices and laughter, the slap of a racquet against tennis ball. A powerful, low roadster stood in the driveway. Young Dillingham was here again—the third time this week—and Marjorie had been undeniably glad to see him. Eleanor frowned. She must watch them more closely. Marjorie had another year at Miss Maitland's School, and then a year in Italy—her father had wished it and she had promised just before he died.

Two long legs in white flannel extended from a wicker chair on the terrace. Dean was reading again after that terrible headache. He must go to the city next week to be fitted for glasses but of course there would be a disagreeable scene. He was stubborn.

Where were Peter and Polly? An hour before Peter had been romping on the lawn with a strange dog and Polly had been ensconced in the hammock with her doll.

Eleanor was tired, desperately so—had been tired for five years—since John died, and left her with all this responsibility which he had shouldered so capably; the two houses, one in town and this one in the country at the lake; the horses and automobile, bank stock and real estate, and the children!

The twins, soiled and dusty, were coming through the gates as she crossed the lawn.

"Go straight to Maggie and get washed and dressed," she admonished them. "I will be back in an hour." Well Eleanor knew that when she came back, Peter's face would be just as dirty as it was now and Polly would be wearing the same soiled pink frock.

She would go to Terence—dear old Terry, friend and companion of school days, John's old friend and hers. Across the road and into the woods beyond, following a narrow worn trail that opened up on a small lake, crystal clear and quiet under the afternoon sun. High on the bank with a background of dense wood stood the log cabin of Terence Malloy, artist and cripple. He had bought that strip many years before when John and Eleanor had just been married a short time and here he spent the Summers with his canvas and paints.

Eleanor heard the tap-tap of his cane on the porch. His eyes lit with a genuine delight as she came up the steps.

"Nellie," Terence clung to the old nickname of schooldays. "I am glad to see you. Come right up and rest . . . and, thanks to your chauffeur, there is ice in the box and lemons . . . so there will be a little nectar fit for the Gods Nellie! What is it?"

"Just tired, Terry, that's all. And I have just—realized what a hopeless failure I am—as a mother."

"Nellie—I am ashamed of you." Terence sat down opposite her and rested his chin on the top of his cane. "That does not sound like our old Nellie Gray. . . ."

"I just had to come to you, Terry. You have not been near me in over a week—not since that day you brought the twins home after they fell in the lake.

"Now Terry, out with it. No secrets, you know. What happened?"

"Oh, come Nellie . . . this is foolish. They are young—mere children and to them, we are ancient . . . and Marjorie seems to think—at least so she advised her young man as I passed them on the lawn that day, that it wasn't my fault that you were not Mrs. Malloy—I had been persistent enough.

"You see, Nellie, my lack of worldly goods—it was nothing, Nellie, nothing at all, but they seemed to think—I was—fortune-hunting! They do not realize—old friends, Nellie, I will come up tomorrow and Marjorie and I will be the best of friends."

"Terry—will you—marry—me?"

His head went down on the folded hands across the top of his cane. "Nellie, little woman . . . you make it . . . very hard for me. I can't, girl—please understand . . ."

"Terry, I have loved you—always. Must I plead—beg—insist? I loved you long before—I married John, and if he had not been so insistent—and you so—slow! Terry, please. I am tired—I need you—I want you. Oh, Terry, I cannot shoulder these cares alone any longer. I want to shift my responsibilities—Terry dear . . ."

Eleanor Gray laughed like a girl the next morning when the chauffeur stopped the big car at the turn of the road and Terence Malloy, very smiling and handsome in his light gray suit and soft hat, threw his bag in and climbed in beside her.

"They knew I was going to the city . . . but they didn't know why," she sighed contentedly. "Dean was asleep in the hammock and Marjorie was waiting for Dil to take her to the Country Club. The twins cried when I left and said they were going right down and tell you how bad I was to take them." She giggled.

"I wrote them all a letter and Maggie is to give it to them tonight when they are alone. I told them—everything! That we would return tomorrow afternoon to your cabin and it would be my home until they accepted you—until they tried to be more like other children—until they would do as we tell them.

"And Terry, I am almost hoping they rebel—for a time anyway, because I want you—all alone. I want the rest, the quiet and just the chance to forget what a failure I have been."

"Terry!" exclaimed Mrs. Terrence Malloy late the next afternoon as they neared the log lodge on the bluff overlooking the lake. There is smoke coming from the chimney, and, as I live! Polly in a clean dress and Marjorie—on the porch!"

And the bride found herself weeping on the shoulder of her tall daughter while Peter and Polly rushed straight into Terry's outstretched arms. Dean was smiling broadly.

"Dinner am ready," grinned Annie, the Gray housekeeper, from the doorway when the greetings were over and they trouped into the lodge.

After dinner Terence Malloy called the first family council. His wife's hand was in his and Peter and Polly shared honors by each claiming an arm of his chair.

"We'll hear from Marjorie first. What is it to be, my girl? Mother's happiness—or Marjorie's?"

"Mother's, of course, after that scare she gave us," was the girl's quick reply. "If you are worrying about 'Dil,' I gave his back his frat pin yesterday after we got your letter—and told him to keep it until I finished school."

"Fine!" Terry answered the pressure from his wife's hand. "And Dean? How about glasses, old man . . . and some more school?"

"Well," drawled the boy, "I suppose so if it will make mother and you—happy. That is, if you will come gack home. What is a home for if there isn't a mother and a dad around?"

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

IT was in the early Spring, and our flowers had come up beautifully. Around the border of one of our flower-beds we had planted a row of pansies, and how saucy those dear little flowers looked as they raised their heads and smiled at the sun.

Now in most cases where you have a pet rabbit it is rather difficult to raise flowers because, I regret to say, that a bunny will nip off a flower blossom as quick as you can say Jack Robinson. Of course, they can't help it. It's their nature just as it is natural for a boy to pick red cherries off of a tree.

But I must say that our little rabbit, Bunny, is very good in that respect. He wouldn't touch a pansy for anything in the world, because he knows how Bobby and I love them and how we worked so that they could grow up and bloom. One morning I said to Bobby:

"Bobby, I think you'd better pick some of our pansies. Mary will put them in a big, flat bowl and we can have them on the table. They'll bloom more profusely if we keep picking them."

So Bobby ran out in the garden, and in a little while came in with a huge bunch of the beautiful velvety flowers.

"Some people call them Johnny-Jump-Ups, don't they, Foxy Grandpa?" said Bobby.

"Yess," said I, "and in England the country maidens call them Three-Pretty-Faces-Under-One-Hood."

"That's a cute name for them," said Bobby, "but do you know, Foxy Grandpa, it's too bad they have no sweet scent."

"That's just the reason the French country girls call the pansy the Trinity Herb."

"Trinity Herb," repeated Bobby, "that seems like a strange name."

"I'll tell you the story," I said, and Bobby laid down his pansies for a moment while I told him this French legend of the pansy.

"The story runs something like this," I commenced. "Long, long years ago, in olden times it seems that the pansy had even a more wonderful scent than its cousin, the violet. And for its beautiful color and sweet odor the pansy was much loved and gathered from the wheat fields in which they grew.

"So fond of the pansy were the people that the wheat fields were very much damaged by the tramping of their feet as they searched the wheat fields for these dear little flowers. Now a time came when it was time to harvest, that there was no wheat for the people to make bread and the result, many were hungry and starved throughout the next Winter.

"Now this made one dear little pansy feel very badly, so she lifted her pretty head and prayed to the Trinity that her sweet scent might be taken away from her and her companions, so that no one would trample on the grown wheat and destroy it for their sake."

"Was her prayer answered?" asked Bobby quickly.

"It was," I replied. "Her scent was taken away and the next year and all the years following there were great harvests and no one went hungry, all because a dear little pansy was unselfish and thought of others rather than herself."

"And is that when their name was changed," asked Bobby.

"Yes," I replied, "from that time all the little French country maidens spoke of the pansy as the Trinity Herb."

"Bunny looked up at this moment with a look of seriousness in his eyes, which turned them a dark red, and said:

"If I weren't bound by honor not to nip off a pansy's head, Foxy Grandpa, I wouldn't do it now, anyway, since you told me that story."

I CAN WEAR SMALLER SHOES NOW
I Bathe My Feet in TIZ

OH YES! I can wear smaller, daintier shoes since I use Tiz. It is because my feet are never swollen or tender any more.

The minute you put your feet in a Tiz bath, you feel pain and tenderness drawn out. Oh! What relief. No more tired, aching, burning, shoe-chafed feet.

Tiz draws out the poisons and acids that puff up your feet. Get a box of Tiz for a few cents at a department store.

Praises Resinol
Itching stopped after first application

Media, Pa., June 26:—"I wonder if you realize how valuable Resinol Salve is as a cure for Ivy Poisoning. We have used it for three members of our household this summer. After the first application the itching sensation passes away and simply does not return." (Signed) Mrs. W. G. McNees, Providence Rd. at Fifth St.

Resinol Ointment is also invaluable for the quick relief of sunburn, insect stings, hives, itching rashes, chafing, etc. A bath with Resinol Soap and tepid water is most refreshing and invigorating at the close of a hot, dusty day.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By Helen Rowland

WHEREFORE my Daughter, dost thou yarn for a man who "understands" thee?

For, lo, such an one would be as a North Light upon the face, before breakfast!

Behold, he would know thine every secret thought and emotion, and would perceive when thou wer't flattered, when thou wer't thrilled and when thou wer't bored.

He would know when thou wer't delighted with attentions—and when thou wer't cut to the heart by his indifference.

He would know all thy words before thou hadst spoken them—and would sift the true from the false, thereof.

He would apprehend how much of thy wit and brilliancy were real—and how much a "parlor trick" to cover thy jealousy or camouflage thy boredom—

He would know all thy feminine weakness and easiness; and naught which thou couldst say or do would "surprise" him.

Thine eyes would hold no "haunting mystery" for HIM; for, he would know that the "dreamy" look therein meant not that thou wer't thinking upon Heaven, but that thou wer't wondering WHEN he would kiss thee!

Yea, verily, thou wouldst be his little GOLD FISH, in a transparent bowl!

And, alas, WHAT man could love a woman, if he "understood" her?

Verily, the man who delighteth in a Woman is he that seeketh not to analyze her.

Who rejoiceth in her kisses and questioneth not whether her lips be natural roses or only painted.

Who believeth that she came into the world marcelled and manicured and scented with violets and narcissus.

Who studieth her not, but accepteth her as the Lord made her, and findeth her a beautiful and glamorous mystery!

Go to, my Daughter, seek thou an understanding man, if thou so listeth. But, as for me, next to a bomb, a bumble bee or a blonde, there is naught in all the world which I so much fear as a "man who understandeth women!"

COOK-COOS

Those of us who are doing all we can to promote friendly international relations are indeed happy to note that—

Japan has presented the United States with 100 gold fish.

The United States has presented Japan with 100,000 white fish eggs.

How can nations whose relations are founded upon such unselfish sacrifices ever come to blows?

The exchange of gifts, according to Washington dispatches, was accompanied by appropriate speeches. Details are missing, but the ceremonies were probably something like this:

Japanese Ambassador—Have you got a bucket or something, Hon. Mr. Secretary of State?

Secretary of State—What's the big idea?

J. A.—Well, I brought you over some gold fish, with the compliments of the people of Japan.

S. of S.—Yeah?

(Japan Ambassador pulls gold fish from various pockets.)

S. of S.—Just put them in the sink.

(S. of S. whispers with first assistant, who rushes out and quickly returns.)

S. of S.—It gives me great pleasure, and I speak for the voiceless millions of America, to express our good will toward Japan. Please accept these fish eggs—100,000—count 'em.

J. A.—Thanks, Big Boy.

And thus another day, pregnant with import, passes into history.

ROLL AND YOU MAY GATHER "MOSS"

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

When John Heywood, away back in the sixteenth century, penned the line declaring that "the rolling stone never gathereth mosse," modernized in the copybooks of a generation or two ago, he probably had no idea of its effect on the public mind. The vast majority of people have gleaned from the Heywoodism that there is something wrong about changing one's vocation, that it indicates failure or something of the sort.

* * *

A cursory study of careers will show this isn't always the case.

Edward M. Herr

Fairfax Harrison, president of Southern Railway, was a lawyer. E. H. Harriman was a stockbroker for years before he became a railroad "king." Edmund Clarence Stedman, the poet and anthologist, whose Summer home is still one of the "sights" at New Castle, N. H., was also once a stockbroker.

Edward M. Herr, president of Westinghouse Electric, former Bostonian, was a Western Union messenger, then a telegrapher, later a railway superintendent. Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Board of Directors, was once a grocery clerk in York County, Maine.

Edward R. Stettinius, who achieved fame as a partner of the House of Morgan, was once president of the Diamond Match Company. Henry Frick, whose mansion was the delight of Pride's Crossing, started as a distillery clerk before entering the coke business. Frank Jones, the rich New Hampshire brewer, was proud of having carried a tin pack before he produced the ale that made his name so well known.

* * *

Major Frederick J. Quinby, millionaire president of Quinby Oil, once gathered material for and published "mastercraft" books in Boston, and numbered among his patrons, J. P. Morgan, the Khedive of Egypt, the Shah of Persia and other notable collectors. President Charles M. Kittle of Sears Roebuck, left that post to become a vice president of the Illinois Central. Some "rolling stones" gather considerable "moss."

MAINE CENTRAL SHOWS SLIGHT FALLING OFF

Operating results of the Maine Central Railroad for the month of May are expected to be somewhat less than those of May, 1925, when the Maine Central obtained a particularly good result, reporting a surplus after charges of $109,099.

In the first half of 1925, the road made an exceptionally good showing with a surplus after charges of $544,600, which contrasted with a surplus of $107,885 in the first six months of 1924. For the first six months of 1926, it is expected that the surplus after charges will be approximately $350,000. This decrease in surplus was caused principally by hard operating conditions, on account of severe cold weather during the month of March, 1926.

The outlook for the second half of the year is considered favorable.

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

I was awakened this morning by the sharp music of a lawn mower. As I left for the station I saw a workman laboriously pushing it. He was perspiring.

A few minutes later, on an elaborate estate, I saw another lawn mower at work. The man operating it was not perspiring, for the hard work was being done, not by him, but by a motor. All he had to do was to guide the mower. Machine-power did the rest.

The handler of the power mower was accomplishing several times as much work as the pusher of the old-fashioned mower.

Why was one lawn being cut by hand and the other by machinery?

Because in the one instance the lawn was relatively small and presumably the owner did not feel in a position to invest in a power-driven mower. In the other instance the place no doubt belonged to a man of greater wealth, one who could afford to spend the capital necessary for the best labor-saving machinery.

From lawns and lawn mowers my thoughts turned to countries, their workers and their capitalists.

The United States has reached the power-driven stage. Other countries have not advanced so far.

The man operating the more expensive mower was able to do as much in an hour or two as the man with the hand mower could do in a whole day. Having a very large lawn, so to speak, America can fittingly employ labor-saving devices even though they call for the investment of a great amount of capital. Most other countries have smaller lawns and far less capital to invest in machinery.

"Labor produces all wealth," agitators are fond of declaring. Now, as a matter of fact, the pusher of the hand mower was working much harder than the other fellow. Yet he was not producing one-quarter the result. Why?

Because little capital had been placed in the hands of one and much more capital in the hands of the other.

The great difference between the amount they produced was due, not to any fault or virtue on their part, but solely to the difference in the amount of capital invested in the tools supplied them. In other words, capital made one vastly more productive than the other.

Everyone is ready to admit gladly that American workmen are not surpassed by the workmen of any other country in the world.

But sometimes workers and agitators and politicians refuse to acknowledge the part capital—and management—have played in making it possible for the American worker to produce more than the foreign worker. American workers have at their command 29,000,000 horsepower of electric power, equal to 290,000,000 manpower. The workers of no other nation have at their beck and call so many obedient slaves. Just as the automobile enables us to cover more ground in comfort than if we walked, so power machinery enables workers to accomplish more in comfort.

Without capital and without management all this, let us in fairness remember, would not have been possible.

Rule by Rejected Members Unjust and Intolerable

The House of Representatives is ahead of the Senate in legislation. While waiting for the Senate to catch up, the House might do something to make this government more democratic.

In one respect the government of the United States is as out-of-date as the government of Tutankhamen.

We are going to elect a whole new House of Representatives this November, and elect 32 new Senators, one-third of the entire Senate. That happens every two years.

BUT THIS NEW CONGRESS WILL NOT MEET UNTIL DECEMBER, 1927, THIRTEEN MONTHS AFTER IT IS ELECTED.

During those thirteen months we shall be governed by the Congressmen and Senators WE REJECTED. The old Congress, not the new, will assemble next December and continue in a "short session" until next March 4, when the terms of all Congressmen expire.

Nothing could be more undemocratic and unjust than for a free people to be governed for over a year by the representatives they voted to get rid of.

Other serious evils spring out of this "short session," held once every two years.

Filibusters thrive at the end of a short session, especially in the Senate, where debate is unlimited. If any important bill is still unpassed a week before March 4, a group of Senators can conspire to talk continuously on it until that date, and never let it come to vote.

The rejected Congressmen and Senators who meet in December to go on making laws for us are called "lame ducks." They hobble around and draw their salaries, but only until next March. Plenty of them want to go on drawing government salaries.

The President, if he chooses, can control the votes of such "lame ducks" by promising them positions after March 4 in postoffices, commissions, the diplomatic service or elsewhere. That is, the continuance of their salaries will depend on whether their votes please the President, not whether their votes please the people who once elected them, but have now turned them out.

No doubt President Coolidge is above taking advantage of the "lame duck" opportunity. But plenty of Presidents have not been above it.

This defect in the structure of our government can be cured through the constitutional amendment of Senator Norris which has just passed the Senate and awaits passage in the House. It provides that Congress shall assemble the first Monday in January each year. The Congress elected next November would thus meet January 3, 1927, instead of December 5, 1927.

No more legislation by rejected Representatives. No more filibusters, no more "lame ducks."

The Norris resolution passed the Senate 67 to 2. This is the third time it has passed the Senate. Each year the House leaders have held it up, not letting it come to vote. They are holding it up again this year. It is favorably reported by the House Judiciary Committee. It has been on the House calendar for months. It will pass overwhelmingly if Congressmen get a chance to vote on it.

Before becoming a law, such an amendment to the Constitution must of course be ratified by three-quarters of the forty-eight States. A word to the House Speaker and majority leader from President Coolidge would probably get this necessary constitutional reform through this Congress.

No Militarism Seen

Soldier Training for Youth Is Common Sense

"Washington, June 6. — Recommendation against compulsory military training in schools and colleges, which was declared to be foreign to the ideals of the American educational system, were made public tonight by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of Churches."

On the same day of this dispatch came the news from Geneva that the International Disarmament Conference, meeting under the auspices of the League of Nations, was about to adjourn, nothing accomplished. The conference has not even been able to agree on the meaning of "disarmament."

Among those returning home disgusted from Geneva will be the American delegation of one Minister, two Admirals, and various high officials of the State Department, with their staffs.

All the world is not so peacefully disposed as the United States. So long as there are criminally warlike nations, peaceful and prosperous nations, which are likely to be the object of attacks by those warlike nations, must take some measures of protection.

In this republican nation great standing armies are not desirable. A small amount of training of the youth of the country in military exercises for the possible defense of the nation is less militaristic and the more democratic method.

Society does not have a police force because it believes in crime, but in order to defend itself against crime. A democratic nation like America does not develop means of defense because it believes in war, but in order to defend itself and its institutions and its land and its people against attack from aggressive nations which do believe in war.

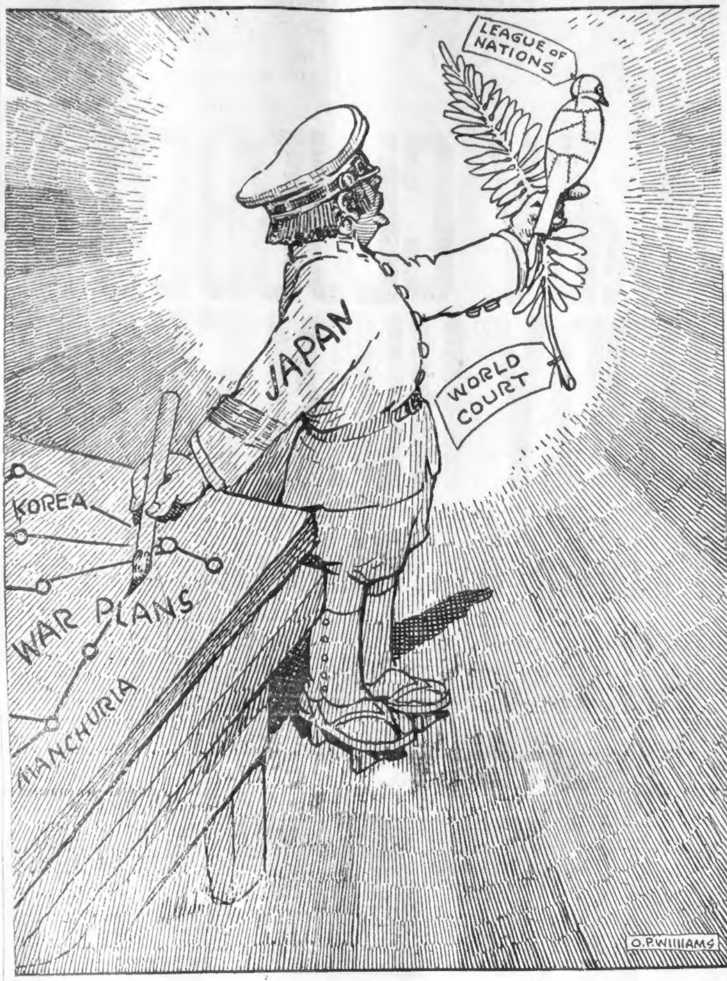
It is not wise for the Federal Council of Churches to oppose defenses of every kind. Such an unwise policy weakens the influence of the church element because their attitude is impracticable and visionary.

The "regular" standing armies of the world today are as follows: France, 733,000; Russia, 562,967; Great Britain, 520,948; Italy, 300,000; Japan, 285,050; the United States, 136,560; Germany, 99,626.

In view of the fact that France, Russia, Great Britain, Italy and Japan all maintain great standing armies; in view of the fact that most of the other nations besides the United States have compulsory military training for ALL youths and have enormous "reserves" of trained men—in view of these things, it does not seem to be militarism, but just common sense to let some of our young men go on getting the elements of military training in schools and colleges.

Let us cultivate the sentiment for peace through the country, but let us maintain adequately our means of defense against attack until we are certain that we have converted the rest of the world to our peaceful policies. Events in other parts of the world do not lead us to believe that day is close at hand.

Let Not the Left Hand Know About the Right



IN view of the opposition of the Federal Council of Churches to military training you might wisely re-read that secret report of Japan's General Staff, printed in the Boston Sunday Advertiser June 6.

Japan does not leave its future to chance. If it has a grievance or wants something, it gets ready, then strikes.

There are other nations of like habit, some powerful. It is difficult to foresee when such a spirit shall be no more.

Uncle Sam, rich and fat, has no warlike intentions, but would be safer with a gun behind the door.

UNCERTAINTY IS ONE THING THAT'S SURE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ONE of the maddest men in seven counties was a man who had his scalp cut open in a wreck with a street car between Urbana and Champaign, Illinois.

He said that he had been all over the world and had ridden in every possible kind of conveyance; he had traveled by steamship, railroad, sedan chair, camel and donkey; and it remained for him to get bashed over the head in a dinky street car accident.

A man in Illinois when the State House was building fell down an elevator shaft some sixty feet, got up unhurt, brushed off his clothes, and went back to work. About the same time another man stumbled over his doorstep on entering the house, in the same city of Springfield, fell and broke his neck, and died.

People are always taking all sorts of chances, and in spite of the law of averages fatal accidents sometimes occur in peculiar ways.

The other day a Mr. Bobby Leach at Christchurch, New Zealand, stepped on a piece of orange peel in the street, fell and broke his leg. Complications set in, the leg had to be amputated, and he died.

This commonplace casualty becomes peculiar and noteworthy when it is stated that at one time Leach went over Niagara Falls and was unhurt seriously, although he was severely battered. He had also performed many other feats of daring.

His last remarkable exploit was to attempt to swim the lower river of Niagara just below the Falls. He failed when he tried to recover his false teeth which had fallen out, and was brought to shore by a boat.

The press also reported in a news item the other day that a man who had successfully flown a number of times in an airplane died as the result of a trivial accident in the street.

The one thing certain about life is its uncertainty, and you cannot most always sometimes tell.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HELEN is afraid.

She's not afraid of mice, nor fire, nor black cats crossing the road, nor of staying alone nor of dark rooms nor of any other bogies that scare so many of us.

She's afraid of STRANGENESS.

She's afraid of going to a new place, and of meeting new people and of facing new situations.

She clings like a cat to her own corner, her old friends and old habits and old program of living. If she is forced to get out of her corner her whole being turns sick. For days she suffers the agony of anticipation. Every thought of the change is misery.

Funny, isn't it? Sounds as of Helen were a nervous, hysterical invalid. But she's nothing of the sort.

Then what IS the matter?

IMAGINATION—that's what is the matter.

Helen has an eight-cylinder imagination, and it works overtime. Most imaginations draw pictures for their possessors—practical pictures, or fanciful ones. But Helen's imagination does more than that. It given Helen the FEEL of things.

It gives her that EMPTY FEELING of strange places—

It gives her that lonely FEELING of being with strange people—

It gives her that LOST FEELING of one who has left home—

It makes that world outside her beloved corner seem a vast, heartless, waiting menace.

And big, strong, cheerful Helen becomes a frightened lost child as she contemplates that menace.

Her imagination does really describe those separate feelings to Helen, nor has she ever analyzed them in herself. She doesn't sty: "I'm going to feel lonely and empty and lost." All she knows is that a dreadful sickness and discomfort overcome her at the thought of facing new places and people, and this feeling confuses her dreadfully. She is ashamed of it, and angry about it. It has wasted and spoiled much rich opportunity for her.

It has held her back many times. She feels that it is one of the greatest evils in her life. And the worst thing about it is that she can't understand what ails her. She thinks she is a coward. But Helen isn't a coward. SHE IS SIMPLY A PERSON WITH A POWERFUL IMAGINATION.

Other people with powerful imaginations are troubled in the same way. They are shut out from the richest things in life because of their dread of strange encounters. Then their own shame over their supposed "cowardice" makes their trouble infinitely more acute. They begin to feel like "marked people." They think they are under a curse—that they cannot do the things which normal, brave people do. If they could only know that they are simply troubled by overactive imaginations they would speedily be cured.

I'M A NEW EXPERIENCE!
DO YOU SHRINK FROM A NEW EXPERIENCE?

Then can we do just what we wish with our imaginations?

No, we can't do just what we wish, for we really know very little about the imagination. Even the wisest psychologists do not know what the imagination is. They do know, however, that it makes a life a heaven or a hell for us. They also know that imagination can be so fed and guided that it will be a helpful servant rather than a cruel tyrant.

If Helen could realize that it is really her imagination which is troubling her she could begin a new treatment of that imagination.

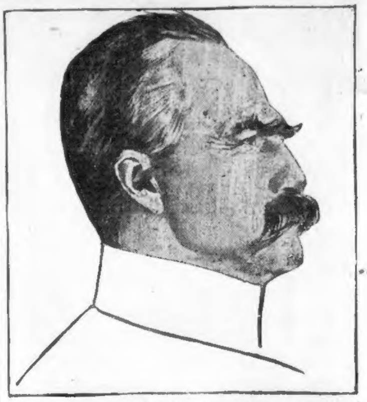
This Is Pilsudski

His Head Is Worth Studying



MARSHAL PILSUDSKI, FIGHTING RULER OF POLAND.

The faces of men are as different as clouds in the sky. Some black, thunderous, threatening. Some pale gray, without character. Some pink and comforting. All interesting. Faces of human beings tell the story of the human race.

What do you think of this face—that of Pilsudski, powerful Polish leader? Europe expects that he will be to Poland what Mussolini is to Italy, supplying will-power in emergencies, making decisions amid uncertainty, giving to the new Polish nation what every nation must have, either from its people or its dictator, a powerful WILL and a definite plan.

Offhand, you would say, "This man has the makings," and on the screen, in moving pictures, he would satisfy thoroughly the demand for an actor "who looks the part."

Those eyebrows alone would get him a job at Hollywood. But apart from moving pictures, by which we judge most things nowadays, here is power of the old-fashioned kind.

Notice that jaw and chin, the straight nose, brows that stand out, showing perception. The head, high above the ears with plenty of room for brain, although the back head is flat.

As you look at this man, you say to yourself, "They may beat him, but they will have to KILL him to do it."

They Suffer Alike

Disabled Emergency Army Officers Deserve Equal Consideration From the Nation

Under the excuse of economy the Republican leaders in the House and Senate are refusing to give Congress a chance to vote on the TYSON-FITZGERALD BILL aimed to remove a rank injustice against a class of disabled army officers.

There is no reason why disabled emergency army officers should be treated any differently by their country than disabled officers of the regular army. They were treated alike—same rank and pay—during the war when they got their wounds. They suffer alike today and deserve equal consideration from a grateful nation.

They don't get it. Disabled regular army officers are allowed to "retire" and get 75 per cent. of their war-time pay. Disabled emergency army officers can't do that. All they can get is an insignificant disability pension.

The Tyson-Fitzgerald bill simply puts 1,000 disabled emergency officers on the same footing with the regulars. It is a just debt of gratitude that would cost the Treasury only $1,190,052 a year.

In the case of NAVY and MARINE disabled emergency officers, this discrimination has been remedied by law. They retire on the same pay allowance as the regulars. But not the ARMY emergency officers.

The bill will pass overwhelmingly if it is allowed to come to vote. At present the Senate Steering Committee and the House Rules Committee are holding it back on the plea that its passage is not in accordance with Mr. Coolidge's economy program.

The President ought not to let himself be misrepresented. He ought to tell his lieutenants that the Republic does not want to economize on the men who wrecked their lives in its defense.

Gustavus Adolphus

A Prince Among Men

As the representative of a land from which have come so many thousands of New Englanders, Massachusetts is delighted to greet Oscar Frederick William Olaf Gustavus Adolphus Bernadotte, Duke of Scania, who has impressed all who thus far have met him in America as a prince among men as well as a Prince of the blood.

The itinerary of the royal visitor brings him today to Pride's Crossing, on the North Shore. In Worcester, yesterday, the future king of Sweden must have felt very much at home, for the Swedes, with their children and grandchildren, number at least 40,000 of the Heart of the Commonwealth's population.

The Governor of New York, no mean politician, recognized in Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus a regular fellow who "could be elected President of Sweden," which may be accepted as one way of saying that our distinguished visitor aims at being true to the motto of Sweden's kings: "The people's love—my reward."
